UNDER THE GUN—Blindfolded and bound, Viet Cong guerrillas sit in a field under the gun of a South Vietnamese soldier. They are waiting for transportation to a rear area for questioning and confinement.

South Vietnamese soldiers and rangers were on a two-day sweep of the region last month, about 45 miles southwest of Saigon, when they captured the guerrillas. AP WIREPHOTO

Sharp Split Delays Action In U. N. on Mideast Crisis

By CHARLES STORER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A sharp split among members of the U.N. Security Council over the course it should take in the Middle East crisis cast doubt that effective action would emerge from today's scheduled council meeting.

The key stumbling block appeared to be Egypt's announced determination, as yet untested, to bar Israeli shipping from the Gulf of Aqaba.

Ambassador Hans R. Tabor of Denmark, council president for June, called the 15-nation council into session after two days of inconclusive private conversations, principally among the 10 nonpermanent members. Representatives of Britain, Argentina, Israel, Bulgaria, Syria and Morocco were listed to speak.

The council had before it two resolutions—one by the United States urging a cooling-off period and a search for a solution through diplomatic means. The other, presented by Egypt, blames Israel for the trouble and calls for reactivation of the Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission.

The belief was widespread that the Soviet Union would veto the U.S. resolutions because of Arab objections if the United States were able to muster the necessary nine votes needed for adoption. There was also doubt that nine council members would support the U.S. plan.

The Egyptian resolution was given no chance of approval. With India taking a leading role, the nonpermanent council members were attempting to work out a compromise along the lines of the U.S. proposal.

Arab nations consider the U.S. resolution aimed at them. The United States wants Egypt to hold in abeyance any enforcement of its blockade of Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba while the search for a diplomatic settlement of the dispute goes on.

One compromise resolution being considered by the nonpermanent members, it was understood, would urge restraint on both sides but would freeze the situation as it is today—with the Egyptian ban on Israeli shipping in the gulf still in effect.

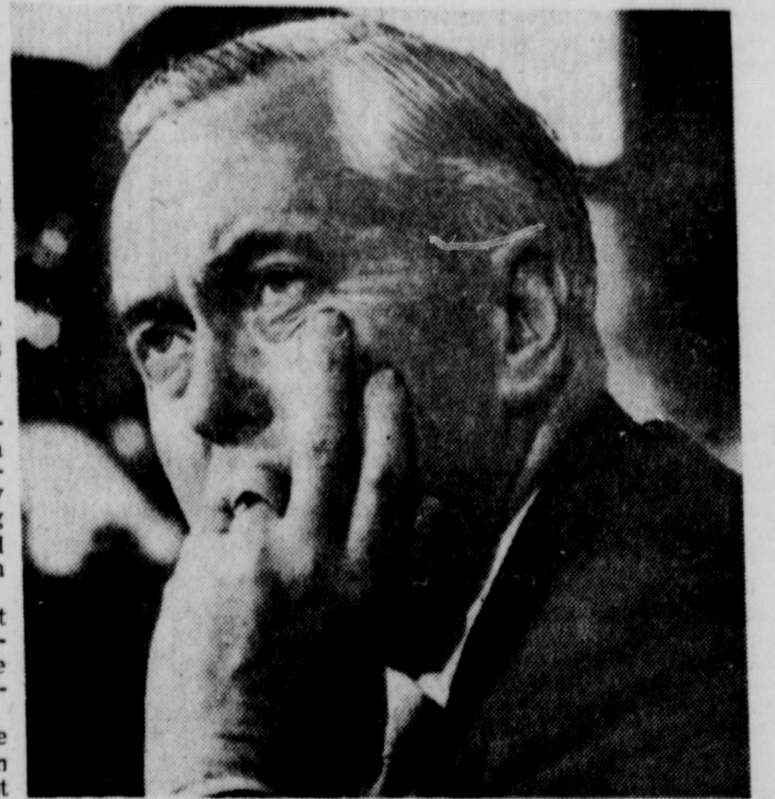

Diplomatic sources familiar with U.S. thinking said this would not be acceptable to the United States.

The simmering crisis exploded into headlines late last month when Egypt demanded withdrawal of the U.N. Emergency Force from its territory along the Israeli border where it had acted as a buffer for more than 10 years.

Secretary-General U Thant struck back Friday night at critics who complained of his haste in acceding to the Egyptian demand.

Speaking at a dinner of the U.N. Association of Canada in Montreal, Thant declared that U.N. peacekeeping "does not, and cannot, rely on military force or threats, on power politics or on physical domination."

"It is a voluntary operation, and any suggestion that it should, for whatever reasons, cease to be so could be fatal to the whole idea."

WARNS CRISIS MAY LEAD TO WAR—British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said Friday that Egypt's declared blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba could lead not only to a local war but a much larger conflict "in matter of hours." He made the statement at a British Embassy news conference after a long talk at the White House with President Johnson. AP WIREPHOTO

Yanks Blast 3,000 Reds Near Da Nang

SAIGON (A) — A veteran Communist regiment of almost 3,000 men in a fortified ridge line was under steady assault today by more than 2,000 Marines aided by air and artillery strikes.

The Red regiment was reported to have lost 372 dead in the preceding 24 hours while fighting to retain its stronghold in Quang Tin Province a bare 25 miles south of the main U.S. Marine base at Da Nang.

Leathernecks sweeping through the foothills 18 miles from the China Sea have been battering at the Communist unit for a week, killing 571 Reds.

In the past 24 hours the Marines appear to have pinned down the regiment on a three-mile ridge line rising some 600 feet above a valley of paddy fields and streams.

Another force of about 2,000 Marines made an amphibious assault landing 21 miles north-east of Hue in a move to cut one of the infiltration routes of North Vietnamese troops.

The war in the air also rose in intensity, with raids penetrating north of Hanoi Friday. Two American jets were downed, making 569 planes lost over North Vietnam.

The Navy put the Leathernecks amphibious force ashore in isolated dunes about 25 miles below the demilitarized zone. More Marines were landed by helicopter about six miles inland.

The sudden landing was made Friday and announced today. Military reports listed no immediate contact with the enemy.

The landing is designed to sweep out Communist controlled areas just above the Viet Cong stronghold known as the "Street Without Joy" because of its long and bloody history of guerrilla fighting.

The South Vietnamese claimed they chopped up the crack 808th Viet Cong mobile battalion in a battle Friday a few miles below the zone and above Quang Trie City, the province capital. The Red battalion of some 600 men lost 200 dead to air, artillery and infantry pounding in a running battle.

The destroyer Bigelow cruised off the coast with its big guns ready to provide support for the infantrymen.

School Article Corrected

An article which appeared in The Kingston Daily Freeman on Wednesday, May 24, in the Saugerties News section, inadvertently included the name of Mrs. Pat Clemmetsen in connection with statements used. Mrs. Clemmetsen's name appeared in an article headlined, "Barclay Heights Mother Charges 'Half-Truths,'" and The Freeman sincerely regrets the fact that any comments in the story were attributed to Mrs. Clemmetsen.

Full apologies are extended to her since the article should not have been credited to her and was not written by her.

The original release in question was delivered to The Freeman editorial offices by Sy Kruzansky, chairman of the Independent Taxpayers Committee, of Saugerties, several days before the article appeared in print and, through a misunderstanding, Mrs. Clemmetsen's name was used as a spokesman for an organization said to be known as the Barclay Heights Mothers Club.

Expect Showdown On Ship Bombing

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet charge that two U.S.A. jets bombed a Russian ship off North Vietnam killing one crewman and injuring six, heightened chances today of a showdown with Moscow over raids by American planes in areas of Soviet shipping.

Shortly after Moscow received a report Friday from the captain of the Soviet ship Turkestani, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko handed a sharp protest to the U.S. Embassy's minister-counselor, John C. Guthrie.

"In the event of a recurrence of such actions on the part of U.S. armed forces," Gromyko's note reportedly said, "the Soviet Union will be compelled to take appropriate measures to ensure the safety of its ships."

"The Soviet government insists, firstly, on the strict punishment of those responsible for the attack on the Soviet ship and, secondly, awaits assurances that there will be no recurrence of actions like this in respect of Soviet ships."

The U.S. Embassy had no immediate comment and forwarded the note to Washington.

The United States neither confirmed nor denied that U.S. planes bombed the ship, which the Soviets said was anchored in the harbor of Cam Pha, 50 miles north of Haiphong.

U.S. spokesmen have noted that American planes have tried to avoid hitting Soviet or other foreign vessels in raids along the North Vietnamese coast.

The United States has answered earlier Soviet charges of hitting ships by saying that falling North Vietnamese antiaircraft shells were to blame.

Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, printed the protest note on its front page today.

The United States has rejected previous Soviet notes accusing U.S. warplanes of interfering with Soviet ships.

Levy May Be Jailed 11 Years

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) —

Army Capt. Howard B. Levy, convicted by a court-martial of disloyalty and disobedience charges, faces a possible prison sentence of 11 years.

Levy, 30, Brooklyn-born dermatologist at Ft. Jackson Army Hospital, was convicted Friday of disobeying orders to train Green Beret medics and of promoting disloyalty among troops by making statements opposing U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The 10-member tribunal of career Army officers, four of them Vietnam veterans, reconvenes today to consider defense arguments for a lighter sentence.

Levy's attorney, who had warned that a conviction might create a martyr for the peace movement, failed in attempts to prove that the Army doctor's disobedience was justified on claims that Green Beret troops committed war crimes in Vietnam and that Levy's medical ethics took precedence over Army orders.

The dark-haired Levy, wearing black-rimmed glasses and a khaki uniform, stood with hands clasped behind his back as the verdict was read by Col. John S. Baskin, president of the court, after nearly six hours of deliberation by the tribunal.

Levy was flanked by two of his attorneys, Capt. Charles M. Sasser Jr. of Ft. Jackson and Charles Morgan Jr. of the American Civil Liberties Union.

After hearing "We find you guilty" five times, Levy turned and took his seat at a table. His face showed no emotion. On a front row were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Levy.

"Please don't ask me anything," said Mrs. Levy. Levy got into a car and left without talking to newsmen.

Only a short time before, he had appeared to be in good spirits and joked with friends outside the yellow clapboard building at Ft. Jackson where his court-martial began May 10.

Someone asked him what he had wanted to do after completing his two years in the Army this July.

"Join Special Forces," he quipped, referring to the Green Beret troops he had refused to train.

Levy, who had taken part in Negro voter registration drives in this area, was convicted of making statements disloyal to the United States with the purpose of promoting disloyalty and disaffection among troops with Negro soldiers being a primary target.

Indirectly Cautions Shukairy

JERUSALEM (AP) — A leader campaigning among cheering Arabs in Jordan for a holy war against Israel has received an indirect warning from King Hussein not to try to use the Middle East crisis for personal political gain.

Meanwhile, an Egyptian envoy to Brazil claimed Friday that Egypt has no intention of destroying Israel, diplomatic sources reported. Cairo radio broadcast a speech by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser May 26 in which he said Israel would have to start any Arab-Israeli war but if it did, war "will be total and the objective will be to destroy Israel."

The expressions of restraint underlined the shaky nature of the Arab unity but did nothing to relieve tension along the border of Jewish Israel and the Arab nations surrounding her.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said in Washington that if Egypt's threat to block Israeli shipping from the Gulf of Aqaba is not solved peacefully, a clash could mushroom into much more than just a local conflict in "only a matter of hours."

The gulf blockade issue also held up agreement among the 15 nations of the U.N. Security Council on measures aimed at easing the Middle East crisis.

The envoy in Brazil was Hussein Zulfikar Sabri, one of several men sent by Nasser to campaign in possibly sympathetic nations for the Arab cause.

Diplomatic sources said Brazilian Foreign Minister Jose de Magalhães Pinto asked specifically whether Nasser had said Egypt aimed to liquidate Israel. They said Sabri denied Nasser ever had made such a statement or that it represents Egyptian policy.

In the Jordanian sector of Jerusalem, Ahmen Shukairy, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, urged thousands of Arabs to wage holy war on Israel.

His organization is dedicated to ousting the Jews from Palestine and giving the land to Arab refugees from the Israeli-Arab war of 1948.

Hemphill Salary Hinges On UR Survey Next Week

Eric Hemphill, executive director of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, may have his salary suspension lifted in the near future if the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development is satisfied with the way the Kingston project is now being handled.

Frank A. Reis, chairman of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, received a telegram late Friday from the office of Charles J. Horan, assistant regional administrator of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which stated that if "project deficiencies, previously indicated by our office, are adequately resolved . . . we will consider a request to lift the suspension of the executive director's salary and to reinstate such cost as a project expense retroactively."

According to Reis, two field representatives from the federal agency will be in Kingston sometime next week to make an on-site inspection of the project. If the representatives feel that the "deficiencies" such as clearing away the debris and temporarily relocating tenants who are effected by the demolition, have been resolved, then Hemphill will be put back on the payroll.

Hemphill's salary of $14,455 per year was suspended two weeks ago when the federal department learned that the city agency was not following the set standards of the government. Demolition has since been curtailed and a study was made on relocation problems. Because of this, Reis hopes that the federal representatives will be satisfied that the requirements are being met.

Nab 4 in Campus Drug Traffic

Four Marist College students and a Vassar College cook were taken into custody Friday night as the result of a three-month investigation by three Dutchess county police agencies on narcotics charges.

Sergeant Hugh Brennan of the Dutchess county sheriff's office told The Freeman that Anthony R. Piccoli, 27, of 34 Lakeview Avenue, Poughkeepsie, was charged with possession and sale of narcotics. Piccoli, identified as a cook at Vassar College, was released in $500 bail pending a hearing June 5 before City Judge Joseph H. Gellert, Poughkeepsie. The students were identified by Brennan and Police Lieut. Joseph Rudolf, Town of Poughkeepsie, as Laszlo F. Nagy, 21, of 17 South Randolph Avenue, Poughkeepsie; Walter George Darbin, 22, of 311 Highland Avenue, Boontown, N. J.; Robert Kenneth Dillon, Jr., 20, of 38 Preston Street, Syosett, L.I. and Dennis Joseph Goonan, Jr., 19, of 158 Noble Street, Brooklyn.

Darbin and Nagy were released in $1,500 pending hearing before justice of the Peace Lyle B. Quick, Town of Poughkeepsie. Dillon and Goonan posted $750 bail each pending hearing June 9.

The arrests were made by details of six men from the Town Police in charge of Detective Lieut. Richard Hellman, six sheriff's deputies in command of Chief Investigator Charles Borchers, and the same number of officers from the Poughkeepsie police department in charge of Sergeant Jack Brophy.

Authorities said marijuana was involved in the case.

An Era Ends With 'Steen' Auction Atop Barrytown's Bluffs

WHERE WILHELMINA AND FDR ONCE SUPPED

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The year was 1850 and Elin Whitney's gin had made cotton the greatest commercial crop of the South and the largest single export of the country.

Henry Clay, the champion of the "American System," was representing Kentucky hemp growers and sugar refiners were doing millions of dollars worth of business in New Orleans and Cincinnati.

Railroads were pushing west; steam was taking to the ocean; and iron ships were replacing the wooden variety.

The Civil War was still 10 years away and little children earned a dollar a week in New England mills and older girls $2, besides their board, for 70 hours work a week. Horace Greeley was telling the country that he estimated a minimum weekly budget for a family of five at $10.37, and Chicago was everybody's kind of town—a fairy tale city where land sales were booming.

Though these were the known and sometimes puzzling economic facts of the life of the times, more pressing problems preyed on the mind of William B. Astor in that year of 1850. Inside his great por-tico, striding back and forth, he pondered what to bestow upon his daughter Laura and his son-in-law Franklin Hughes Delano as a wedding gift.

He eventually settled on a rare present indeed—a sumptuous residence called "Steen Valetje" (Dutch for "Little Stone Valley") which he ordered built on a high bluff overlooking the Hudson at Barrytown. Italian craftsmen were brought to the United States for the sole purpose of creating this summer home of more than 45 rooms on a 630-acre estate, and it has few known rivals or superiors.

When it was finished, the newlyweds moved into the imposing red sandstone and terracotta mansion with its nine bedrooms, large ballroom and grand staircase built on massive scale and carpeted in brilliant red. Since they had also been given a house in New York City and $1 million as additional wedding presents, they had the interior of their Italianate Victorian residence hand decorated by Italian painters and artisans and proceeded to fill it with some 2,000 items of furnishings and works of art collected from trips to Europe.

This week all these furnishings and a collection of more than 200 Italian, Dutch and Flemish paintings (these last purchased originally at an estimated cost of $100,000) went on the block at a four-day auction at "Steen Valetje." What once had epitomized the affluence of the whaling, clipper ship trading and railroading Delanos through two centuries, succumbed to the whims of antique dealers and area housewives.

To a staccato-like spiel of the auctioneer, bids fell and rose on such items as carved wood statuettes, pottery figures and urns, rose DuBarry vases, Japanese egg shell teapots, blue Delft covered cups and 12 gauge shotguns. A collection of Viennese dolls was coveted by more than one mini-skirted dealer in white net stockings up from Manhattan and elderly gentlemen in coveralls carried home terra cotta incense burners, alligators wrapped in mummy cloth and old copper, stone and brass coins and medals.

The 117-year-old estate, where a U.S. President and a Queen of the Netherlands had once been entertained, provided a backdrop of grandeur for the auctioneering. Tense faces of bidders, querulous voices in the background, the constant reiteration of "Are you all done?" . . . "Are you ALL done?" by auctioneer O. Rundle Gilbert, and bargain-burdened buyers were all part of the scene. Taxis and station wagons, sedans and trucks pulled up in a continuous line near the outdoor sale beneath a green-and-white striped canopy.

More than 300 people were there when we dropped by on Thursday (the second day of the auction) and approximately the same number had been there the day before.

The "Steen" auction attracted the curious, the wealthy, the middle-class and the "scene" lovers like a giant magnet. The estate, on River Road, five miles north of Rhinebeck, near the east side of the Kingston Rhinebeck bridge, is barely discernible through the trees from the bridge. The manor house, once the gatehouse has been passed, is approached by a lengthy, well-kept drive that curves past farmlands where cows graze and crops are planted, woods, barns and eight tents of various sizes and colors were scattered across the front yard and the furnishings were carried through the main door, beneath the glass-roofed portico and onto a block, where the haggling began.

Beneath the striped canopy, bidders sat on benches and folding chairs, and escaped the rays of a hot June sun. A smaller tent held large articles already sold but too heavy to transport from the scene easily and quickly. Under a khaki colored tent the ladies of the Northern Dutchess Hospital Auxiliary supplied the hungry with sandwiches.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Victor Hugo, French literary giant in the Nineteenth Century, was not only a man of many thousands of words in his poems, plays, novels and essays, but he was a dedicated man of action based on faith. Strongly influenced by his mother, a devout Catholic, both in his writings and in political action, he dedicated his life to man's liberty. Because of that dedication, he was exiled for 19 years.

In France his name stood as a symbol of the Republic and he said, "When liberty returns, I shall return!" Later he became intensely absorbed with the soul of man. He jotted down many notes, including the following which is helpful even today.

"You say the soul is nothing but the resultant of the bodily powers. Why, then, is my soul more luminous when my bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head, but eternal spring is in my heart."

Blaine Amendment Views to Be Aired

S. James Matthews, Constitutional Convention delegate for Ulster-Dutchess, and the Rev. Leon Adkins, chairman of the Legislative Commission of the New York State Council of Churches, will air their views on the proposed repeal of the Blaine Amendment, Sunday 7 p. m. in the parish room of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

The Blaine Amendment prohibits the direct and indirect use of public revenue for aid to parochial and private schools. It has become the focal point of a heated debate at the Constitutional Convention.

The New York state Council of Churches has taken a strong stand for the inclusion of the Blaine Amendment in the new Constitution. The Rev. Mr. Adkins was chairman of the commission which drafted the Council's statement. Matthews, a local attorney and member of the Fair Street Church, has declared himself in favor of excluding the amendment from proposed Constitution.

The discussion is being sponsored by the Institute for Christian Living of the Church. The public may attend.

Chinese Learning to Live With Cultural Revolution

EDITOR'S NOTE — A woman photographer from Tokyo has been touring China with several other Japanese. Here are some of the impressions she set down.

By CHIE NISHIO

PEKING (AP) — On the surface it looks as if the people of mainland China are learning to live with Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution purge.

Before they pick up their chopsticks in city restaurants they recite from the red plastic-covered booklets of Mao sayings.

When they window shop, they must peer between the frayed edges of wall newspapers plastered over store windows.

At night in their dimly lit cities, they get more cultural revolution, in movies, ballets and discussion groups.

In our tour of China we saw no sign of the violence often reported in the wall newspapers although we noted an undercurrent of tension at one commune.

The people went about their daily work, amid the trappings of the cultural revolution, seemingly unmindful of the struggle of titans going on between Mao and President Liu Shao-chi.

Housewives, only a few hanging onto tots, crowded the Canton city market, standing in line twice a day to buy fresh foods for the midday meal and again for the evening.

The stalls were filled with beef, chicken, fish, cleaned fresh vegetables. Most of it hung from overhead frames. It looked good, and prices seemed cheap.

Special counters were manned by government inspectors to check prices and weights. In Peking and Shanghai there was the traffic of a big city, but it was mostly bicycles.

Factories were busy. One, at Fatshan, specialized in enamelware. It employed 500 persons and concentrated on making busts of Mao for government offices. It received so many orders in 1966 that the last one will not be filled until August.

Then they will start on the 1967 orders.

In Shanghai we saw a worker's apartment — one room to one family, with a separate private kitchen and bathroom. One tourist commented that the apartment was too small, but the official interpreter retorted:

"They used to live in worse conditions."

May Day added a bit of spice to this steady diet of Mao and politics.

We arrived in Peking the day before, and people from the countryside were already taking up positions in spacious Gate of Heavenly Peace Square.

Normally there are few gay lights in China cities, but for May Day red and yellow lights sparkled on buildings like Christmas tree lights.

Early May Day morning we walked through the Peking parks. It was a big, big festival, just like a carnival. Everybody was smiling. Everybody was in good humor. It was the only time soldiers didn't mind me taking pictures of them.

At the square itself there were fewer families and babies. Some of the women wore military outfits. Most of the people seemed to be in their everyday clothes, nothing special.

All were waiting for nightfall, for a chance to see Mao.

I was far back, and the sun had set. Music came over the public address system. There was a spotlight on the distant gate. I could see a small figure waving.

He came down to the crowd and the guide said: "Here comes Mao." The crush of the crowd was great. Several persons were carried out.

Then the figure moved back up to the gate. He waved, and there was cheering.

In the distance he was so small we could not tell exactly who he was. I looked through a powerful camera lens but even then he was just a shadow in the city of the spotlight.

He remained before the audience for about 10 minutes, then the spotlight was turned off.

Rochester Man Faces Charges At Rhinebeck

Surprised in the Village Hall at Rhinebeck late Friday night, Stephen Phillip Tisa, Jr., 51, of 31 Susan Lane, Rochester, was apprehended after a struggle with a police officer and booked on charges of burglary third degree and second degree assault.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace William Pollard, Town of Rhinebeck, Tisa was committed to the Dutchess County jail to await grand jury action.

Cited After Mishap

Allen Dingman, 19, of RD 2, Hudson, was cited by Thruway State Police Friday afternoon for making an unsafe turn after a truck he was operating was involved in a collision on the superhighway near mile post 104.

Town of Saugerties. Trooper J. F. Ryan said the other vehicle was a car operated by William Schutt, 46, of Glen Rock, N. J. The summons issued to Dingman is returnable later before Justice of the Peace Calvin Cody, Town of Saugerties. Both vehicles were traveling north at the time of the mishap.

BCI officers and uniformed troopers from Rhinebeck were dispatched to assist in the arrest after being notified by residents of a disturbance. Authorities said Tisa was accused of burglarizing the Village Hall and a beauty salon.

The appointment of Mrs. Richard Neiman, social studies; Harry Purcell, business.

To district elementary faculties — Mrs. Eleanor DeWitt, Accord intermediate; Gerald Garfman, Kerhonkson intermediate; Mrs. Dorothy Schreyer, Accord primary and Mrs. Nan Slutzky, Marlborough primary.

Accepted, with regret, were three resignations from the high school teaching staff: Carl L. Burke, social studies; George Isseries, speech therapist and Miss Winifred Vaughn, mathematics.

Calvin H. Rider's appointment as a cleaner at the high school was approved and the resignation of Fred Johnson from the same position was accepted.

The board approved a new extracurricular salary schedule based on an index tied to the beginning salary schedule. The new schedule is geared to establish realistic salaries and guarantee their regular review.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ted T. Grenda recommended that the policy of permitting one person to direct more than two sports be reviewed.

A saving of $134 in the high school addition, effected by the deletion of piping and 2 sinks, was approved. The board passed a resolution to create a 2-year Capital Note for the payment of senior high school costs. This resolution changes the present note based on a five year payment in order to qualify for State Aid. The matter of personnel policies was referred to a committee for review.

The site plans of the new Rosendale school were studied, and the board discussed the planned location of the building and adjacent play areas, as well as the possible future use of the remaining land as the site of a second Middle School, should such a structure ever be needed.

The board reviewed the past year's Teacher Turnover Study. Of 137 full-time teachers employed in 1965-66, 13 did not return for the 1966-67 school year. Of this number, two retired, one left to be married, two were on maternity leave, other home duties claimed two.

Mountain View Coach Lines Inc., announced it has filed a new Tariff No. 15, which has increases of approximately 5c per ride on all types of tickets. The last Tariff No. 14 was issued in the year 1962, and since then there have been many increases in expenses and taxes.

In the past year 1966-1967 employees have become unionized and with this expense in addition to the other increases in expenses and taxes necessitates this fare increase. We hope by keeping this increase to a minimum of a nickel we will not discourage passengers and the traveling public, the statement said.

Mountain View Coach Lines issued for the first time family tickets in 1962. These tickets which reduced the one-way fare approximately 5c per ride in books of 6 tickets, did not go over with the public. The few riders using these don't warrant the cost of having these printed. Last survey showed that the number of books sold had dropped to 15 per week, and were sold at very few places, the statement concluded.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 3, 1967

BEAUTY OR BLIGHT

Summer will arrive on June 21, the longest day of the year. For a great many people, it is the most pleasant season of the year. It is the season when the works of nature reach full bloom. It is the season of picnics, of boating, fishing trips and other outdoor recreation. It also is the season when the family car will carry vacationers far and wide to the beaches and lakes and to the local area mountain resorts.

In the Catskill Mountains, where resort accommodations are more highly concentrated than anywhere in the state, some will enjoy quiet relaxation amid the wonders of the rugged mountains and the scenic lakes. Others will participate in many forms of recreation and sports activities.

We believe it is a fitting time to issue a plea to all those who will stream out of the cities to enjoy the wonders which abound in this area. Besides carrying people, many of these motor vehicles will be loaded with beer and soda cans, paper plates, food particles, and other refuse which should be disposed of in containers provided along the scenic routes.

Whether there is beauty left for those to follow will depend on the behavior of all of us — natives and visitors alike. They will have the power to leave a heritage of beauty or blight. The choice is made whenever trash is tossed out of the family car along the roadside or left at the proper places provided for travel, camping or picnicking.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

WAS DODD DEPRIVED OF DUE PROCESS?

The case of Tom Dodd will be coming before the full body of the U. S. Senate at a time when, because of the Middle East crisis, there is more feeling running against the Communists than in many months. Since Dodd's anti-Communism has been one of the main "liberal" counts against him, setting much of the ground tone behind the move to censure him for violating fund-raising laws that have never been made, the recent dramatic change in the Capitol Hill attitude toward "bridge building" to the Communist East may play its part in influencing the Senate's vote.

Anti-Communism is no excuse, of course, for reprehensible financial practices. But Dodd's loyal staff employees—and there are eight among them who worked their hearts out for him for more than four years, or all through his time of trouble—say that the Senator's hard, grinding laboring trying to warn his country against the danger of taking the Cold War lightly was a main cause of diverting his attention from the shoddy book-keeping which resulted in the double-billing for some air flight tickets and the failure to bill for others. In short, Dodd assistants such as David Martin, Alan Kranowitz and Judge James Gartland, who believe in him utterly, might argue that a prophet is entitled to a margin for error in the business of riding herd on underlings in charge of routine office matters.

It came as no surprise to Dodd or his loyal staffers when Nasser, the Soviet Union obviously behind him, provoked the Middle East crisis. After all, Dodd has lived through several periods of euphoria about "peaceful co-existence." He was right in predicting that the Communists would partition Laos, he was right about the Congo, he was the first to tab "redeemer" Nkrumah of Ghana as a Red collaborator, he warned the danger of letting the Marxist Jedd Jagan take over British Guiana, he was ahead of time in offering the "gnawing conviction" that Moscow was violating the unpoliced nuclear test moratorium which Khrushchev subsequently ended with a fifty-megaton explosion, he exposed the machinations of the Soviet-inspired Tricontinental Conference of Asian, African and Latin People in Havana, and he doubted that the consular treaty with Russia would turn Brezhnev and Kossygin into true peacemakers in the Far East.

Men of such foresight are needed in the Senate; it would be adding shame to shame to destroy Dodd's future effectiveness unless the evidence is certain that he has violated some already existing law.

The truth is that the fifty per cent of the Senate that is not in the millionaire class has to depend on special forms of "moonlighting" to make ends meet. Senators such as Everett Dirksen are careful to keep their "political" money and their "personal" money in separate bank accounts. But when Tom Dodd, who "commingled" his accounts, says he spent no more on his personal affairs than he had put out in the past from his personal funds to pay political bills, the proof of his honesty should be apparent from his statement of his net worth. Dodd has only debts to show for his career.

What the ethics committee that took testimony on the case of Tom Dodd should have done is something quite different from what it did do. It should not have permitted itself to act as a court. For, as a court, it was bound to violate elementary due process. The "prosecutor" of the Dodd case also acted as chief advisor to the judges in the case, and then wrote the findings. This would not be permitted in any civil court in the land. Furthermore, the ethics committee should have taken testimony from dozens of senators to see how funds are raised for politicking. Some senators still continue their law office connections, getting money, as Long of Missouri did, from referrals. Others travel the lecture circuit, getting $500 or $1,000 for telling people what they want to hear. The organizations which pay for the lectures certainly hope to benefit from friendly voices on Capitol Hill. None of this is illegal. But neither are testimonial dinners illegal. If the Senate is going to have rules to cover senatorial moonlighting, they should be based on a comprehensive investigation, not on a holler-than-thou chastisement of an individual senator who has been victimized by office thieves.

Next year Senator Jacob Javits, who is almost unbeatable, comes up for reelection. Republican conservatives plan a spoilers effort to deny him renomination, which will fail, and then they will then nominate a candidate of their own. But Democrats do not have in sight any candidate, much less one who can split off vital labor, liberal and ethnic votes from Javits.

In 1969 New York City Hall is again at stake. Republican John V. Lindsay is gathering unstoppable momentum. But the only Democrats interested are the same old organization types who permitted power to slip out of their hands because they would not face current political realities. There, another pseudo-contest, uninspiring and hard to finance, is in prospect.

A Senate seat, Robert F. Kennedy's, and the governorship will be on the ballot in 1970. It has been suggested that Kennedy would switch spots then so that he could be sure of controlling the three-town centralization plan.

Wired for Sound

Henry J. Taylor Says

Viet Doves Become Middle East Hawks

It's high time our public understood what we're doing in the United Nations about the Vietnam war. The truth is utterly appalling.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr. (D., Va.) turned to Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg to get it. He wrote him an official letter as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Virginian wanted to smoke out the U.N.'s attitude in specific terms and our exact policy toward the U.N. in this vital matter.

"Is this a U.N. war, or a United States war only?" Byrd asked.

Ambassador Goldberg replied: "It is neither. While we make the major contribution, substantial contributions have been made by a number of South Vietnam's closest neighbors most directly concerned with the conflict. Some 50,000 men are in the field from five of these nations."

Ambassador Goldberg was a short nine-inch shot from nowhere in being straightforward and frank.

All but 3,000 of those 50,000 to which he refers come from Korea.

The U.N. has 121 member nations, and we pay 31 per cent of the U.N.'s total cost. And the other troop-sending nations Ambassador Goldberg failed to speak about consist only of three. Australia, has approximately 7,000 in the field, the Philippines 4,000, and New Zealand a token force. Moreover, on a recent visit to Saigon, Senator Byrd found that with respect to troops assigned to combat duty, only the United States and Korea are involved in Vietnam.

As a body, the U.N. does not even consider North Vietnam an aggressor nation and has failed to take even a formal position on the Vietnam war.

In simple truth, the United States delegation has not even officially sought U.N. military help in Vietnam. Ambassador Goldberg unabashedly explains: "Because of the sharply divided opinions, it is not realistic to seek a U.N. military role."

Notice carefully and you will see that Ambassador Goldberg does not take the floor in the General Assembly, or stand up in the Security Council, and demand some help, for the United States. Yet haven't we been told ten thousand times—and always when it's time for the United States to pay the bills—that the chief purpose of the U.N. is to maintain the peace?

The Johnson Administration has not even advocated economic sanctions against our North Vietnam enemy. Ambassador Goldberg passed over that subject entirely with Senator Byrd. He replied in one word, "No."

Yet when the British asked the U.N. to apply sanctions against Rhodesia, a nation which has injured us in no way whatever, and Whitehall asked Washington's support, we joined the British and thundered for the U.N. to take action.

Ambassador Goldberg showed no hesitancy in taking the floor of the Security Council in demanding sanctions then. Why not now?

When the U.N. passed the resolution (April 9, 1966) authorizing the "use of force" against oil deliveries under any flag to Rhodesia, we cooperated in this blockade, and still do. Yet the majority of free-world vessels supplying our enemy in North Vietnam are British. And the London government has the gall to insist that England cannot stop even her own vessels going to Hanoi and Red Cuba.

In fact, when our appeal first went out to individual allies in 1962 in respect to sanctions against Cuba, the British government attacked us for even making such a request and ignored the plea, and still does. So, of course, does the U.N.

On May 25 some 50 Congressmen wrote President Johnson an appeal that painted the U.N. as the desirable vehicle for an end to the Vietnam war. They might well have saved their breath had they read Senator Byrd's letter and Ambassador Goldberg's innocuous reply.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson once complained that greetings, gossip and rumors comprise about 75 per cent of the U.N.'s business day. Today the situation is even worse than that.

We bow repeatedly to the U.N. and allow it to control many of our policies on the grounds that the U.N. represents "world opinion"—which is never defined. Then we subordinate the American interest by failing to call a spade a spade in the U.N., fearing that we will reveal its frailty.

Yet, if to be honest about the U.N. is to destroy it, it is destroyed already.

New York Democrats Have Problems

delegation to the 1972 Democratic convention.

This possibility will depend on the situation at the time. Kennedy is unlikely to switch from a sure thing, especially if the party has failed to improve its position in the next two years. With foreign affairs so dominant in the national picture, he might lose ground by leaving Washington for Albany.

But the question arises whether New York will remain faithful to the Democrats nationally in spite of their ineptitude within the State. Political organization is not all-important these days, but it helps, and a near-total lack of elective and appointive nourishment can be fatal.

Opposition assessment of strong candidates in the rival party is always an object of suspicion. It is interesting, however, that a leading Democrat strategist here believes that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller could defeat President Johnson in 1968 if Republicans can bring themselves to nominate him. He could certainly carry New York and other pivotal states, except California, this Democrat insists. He wryly adds that a Rockefeller victory, or even his candidacy, will not help the state Democrats.

The Democratic search for ways to solve their problems continues. Members of the city organization cooperate in varying degrees. Some are openly cynical. Others with ambitions to be mayor or governor stick with it.

No new names have emerged from the regular skull practices initiated by Kennedy. A curious feature is that no one even seems to remember the able House members who are available, such as Rep. Otis Pike of Suffolk, who have proved their elective appeal even in nominally Republican districts. The city powers effortlessly downed Rep. Samuel Stratton of upstate with Kennedy in 1964 and still fish for "names."

One they mention is Bill Moyers, the President's confidant and former press secretary. But Moyers is digging his new job as publisher of Newsday, the successful Long Island daily, and does not take any formal part, public or private, in state party deliberations. This is indicated for professional reasons and, by the practical fact that he is close to Johnson in a state where Johnson is not now a good word.

Besides, Moyers is young. He can wait.

Washington Expose... No. 2

The Great Protection Racket

In this second in a series from "Washington Expose," Jack Anderson digs into Senator Thomas J. Dodd's transgressions and his use of the FBI as a shield from investigation.

By JACK ANDERSON

It is no light matter to investigate the transgressions of a Senator — particularly if he happens to be a member of The Establishment with friends in high places, more so if these friends happen to include the President of the United States and the legendary director of the FBI. This was impressed upon Drew Pearson and myself soon after we began writing about Senator Thomas J. Dodd, D. Conn.

We had spent six months on the story, running down leads, interviewing witnesses, collecting documentation. We had developed evidence of apparent federal violations, which we had handed over to the FBI.

When the Senator's former employees began to receive visits from the FBI, we innocently assumed the agents wanted to verify the charges against Senator Dodd. But astonishingly, they didn't ask a single witness a single question about the Senator. Instead they examined our informants about their part in securing the documents, thus giving the impression that the government intended to protect Dodd and prosecute his detractors. Less sure witnesses would have been scared into silence before the Senate could have heard their testimony.

Agents Assigned

In the past, the FBI has refused to investigate the most heinous crimes outside its jurisdiction. Yet when we documented our charges against Dodd out of his personal files, a dozen agents were assigned to find out who had given us the information.

This raises questions that may be more important than the Dodd scandals themselves. Should a high official, whose conduct is questioned, be permitted to use federal police to intimidate the witnesses against him? Should FBI agents be allowed to investigate newsmen for no crime at all unless it has become a crime to accuse a Senator of improprieties? An answer has been given to at least one question. Whose idea was it to go after Dodd's accusers and make a federal case of a minor misdemeanor? The FBI said the order came from Nicholas Katzenbach, then Attorney General.

We had expected Senator Dodd to fight back. He is an extraordinary man, silver haired, with a classic profile recalling the toga-clad Roman Senators of old. He is a man of quick temper and passionate convictions that mount almost to phobias. With his family and his staff, he can switch from tolerance to tyranny in an instant. He can be a boon companion or a deadly bore, depending upon his mood.

A lawyer who failed his bar examination and was admitted to practice in Connecticut by special dispensation, he has a passion for gumshoes dating back to his own brief service with the FBI in 1933. He stayed with the FBI for less than a year, but these were his heroic days. By his own account, he took part in the famous shoot-out with the Dillinger gang at the Little Bohemia Roadhouse in Rhineclaire, Wis. He had other heroic days when, as a Justice Department attorney, he acted as a prosecutor during the Nuremberg trials of the Nazi leaders. But the FBI is still his first love.

FBI agents have always had the run of Dodd's Senate office. If anyone said an unkind word about J. Edgar Hoover, the Senator was usually the first on his feet to defend his old chief. If a stubborn subversive refused to talk to the FBI, Senator Dodd could be relied upon to haul him before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and put him through the wringer. More than one citizen, whose loyalty was never in question, was sweated out by Dodd merely for criticizing the FBI.

Check on Aide

In return for Dodd's devotion to the FBI, the FBI has always been willing to do a little extra-curricular investigation on his behalf. Once the Senator wanted to check on the after-hours movements of his administrative assistant, James Boyd. For two weeks, agents trailed Boyd, then submitted a report typed on plain white paper. This was merely one of many unmarked reports that Dodd received from the FBI. Of course, there is nothing in the books that authorizes the FBI to engage in private snooping for members of Congress.

Perhaps a great FBI agent was lost when Dodd forsook Hoover's tough discipline and plunged into Connecticut politics. He won appointment as state director of the National Youth Administration and became friendly with a lanky, energetic fellow who headed the program in Texas—Lyndon B. Johnson.

A quarter of a century later, Dodd was to nominate Johnson for President at the 1960 Democratic convention. At the next convention, Johnson was to summon Dodd to the White House along with Hubert Humphrey to decide which of them would be his running mate in 1964. LBJ also considered Dodd as a possible successor to Robert Kennedy as Attorney General.

With Johnson in the White House and Hoover, apparently immortal, still firmly in command of the FBI, Dodd no doubt felt he was above the kind of investigation he had so often conducted on others. For a time it looked as if his confidence was not ill placed.

After our first columns questioning his conduct appeared, Senator Dodd made a great gesture. He called on the Senate and the FBI to investigate him, presumably confident of not one but two whitewashes. The next thing we knew, the FBI was hot on our trail.

Phones Tapped

Informants in the Justice Department told us that our telephones were tapped. The Attorney General invited us to his office and politely warned that we might be prosecuted. A cabinet officer even sent friendly word that indictments had been drawn against us in connection with the theft of the Dodd papers.

But our troubles were small compared to those of our informants who had supplied us with the documentation. I can identify here only the four who have already admitted under oath that they copied documents from the Senator's files and turned them over to me.

It was not an easy decision for these four people to make. They could not accept payment for their stories — even if we had been willing to offer it — without putting their motive in a bad light. Rather than any financial gain, they became subject to economic retaliation. They also knew that in American society the informer is more likely to be damned than praised, even if the information is in a good cause. Nor were they the sort of people who like to see their names in the newspapers. They were sophisticated without being cynical, well aware of the dirty pool that can be played on Capitol Hill when the career of a powerful political figure is at stake.

What Motive

Their motive. They belong to a vanishing breed who put the public well before their personal welfare.

It was Senator Dodd's misuse of campaign funds that finally turned James Boyd against the man he had served faithfully for 12 years. A cum laude graduate of Boston University, Boyd had stars in his sky blue eyes when he joined Dodd to fight against Connecticut's boss-controlled Democratic machine. He almost worshipped the Senator, despite some trying idiosyncrasies, because he felt Dodd was a man of caliber and courage.

But when his idol proved to have feet of clay, Boyd threw everything aside to expose what he considered to be a betrayal of trust. He knew that he risked prosecution for copying evidence from Dodd's files. He knew that he faced unemployment, perhaps for a long period. He was giving up the prestige of being chief of staff to a United States Senator. But he accepted all these challenges.

Shapely, blonde Mrs. Marjorie Carpenter, a modest but quietly determined young woman, became disillusioned after only two years as the Senator's personal secretary. She had a closer view into Dodd's private affairs than other staff members. Probably more than the others, she detested the glare of the spotlight, but she would not be deterred from what she believed to be her duty.

Mike O'Hare, the Senator's bookkeeper and office manager, came to him as an apprentice office worker straight from Catholic University. O'Hare's intimate knowledge of the Senator's finances has made him a key witness, and Dodd has lashed out at him bitterly. But the Senator has yet to learn that when O'Hare finally made his soul-wracking decision to hand over the damaging documents, the young man had tears in his eyes. "I have been protecting these books with my life," he told me. "Now I am giving them to you to publish for the world to read." O'Hare did not leave the Senator's office until January 1966, about the time the first Dodd columns were published.

Terry Golden, a pretty, red-haired secretary, worked in an outer office and I was not as exposed to the Senator as the others. But she became aware of wrongdoing and decided her duty was not to the Senator who hired her but to the taxpayers who paid her salary.

Months earlier, Dodd got wind of our inquiries into his affairs and sent intermediaries to speak to us in his behalf. Yet curiously, he ignored phone calls from me requesting an interview, face to face. An intermediary explained that his staff must not have given him my messages, but the intermediary also failed to arrange an interview.

Ho Hum Reaction

The reaction to our first revelations about the strange doings of Senator Dodd was rather ho hum. There was nothing in the Capitol cloakrooms, of course, but Dodd's colleagues carefully refrained from public comment. Members of the exclusive senatorial club were most reluctant to touch a tarbrush.

In the Connecticut press, our columns were almost totally blacked out. Only the courageous little Waterbury Republican published them, despite a barrage of letters from reader's protesting that a fine man was being persecuted. The Hartford papers took no notice of the columns until Dodd began to issue denials. This required some explanation, of course, of what he was denying.

Then the process of intimidation began. The Senator, striking back as expected, went after his former employees with amazing vindictiveness. A word to Speaker John McCormack brought an abrupt cancellation of James Boyd's new job with the House Public Works Committee. Dodd also tried to get the Civil Rights Committee, associated with the American Bar Association, to fire Mrs. Marjorie Carpenter. Though the committee did not dismiss her, Mrs. Carpenter sensed that her new bosses were embarrassed and submitted her resignation. She found a job with the law firm of Arnold and Porter after scrupulously identifying herself and explaining her role in the Dodd affair. She kept the job precisely one week; a phone call from the Senator's office persuaded the law partners to change their minds about her employment.

Another phone call from Dodd convinced Judge David Bazelon that he should drop Terry Golden as his secretary. And Mike O'Hare, blackballed wherever he sought a job, became desperate.

At the same time, FBI agents were calling upon our informants and warning them that anything they said might be used in evidence against them. Some were questioned politely, others grilled relentlessly. Some of the questioning actually took place in Dodd's Senate office, thus giving witnesses the impression that the FBI was working for Dodd. One of the Senator's employees, Doris O'Donnell, seven months pregnant, was cross-examined for more than two hours in an anteroom just off the Senator's private office.

But the FBI was pulling out all the stops to help the embattled Dodd. Drew Pearson and I have been around Washington long enough to know that J. Edgar Hoover is reluctant to investigate either Senators or newspapermen. Anxious as he was to do Dodd a favor, it is most unlikely that he would investigate our news sources without pressure from the very top. Officially, the FBI notified us that the investigation had been ordered by Attorney General Katzenbach; theirs was not to reason why.

It is worth recording that Hoover has his own private phone link with the president. When Lyndon Johnson was in Congress, Hoover lived across the street from him. Now Hoover remains in office past the retirement age by special dispensation of LBJ. Obviously, the FBI would do nothing to displease the President.

Not at all in delicate areas without his consent. From sources inside the White House, we have learned that the President personally received the FBI reports on the Dodd case for his bedtime reading. It is safe to assume he did what he could—with reason—to protect his old Senate comrade, Tom Dodd.

Like the FBI, the Senate Ethics Committee, at first seemed to be more interested in protecting than probing. The real object of their investigation, committee members leaked to the Chicago Tribune, was to find out who had "stolen" the damning documents from his offices. Only the deepening public outrage persuaded the Committee, and eventually the FBI, to concentrate on Dodd rather than his detractors.

Dodd's standing as a Senator must be decided, in the end, by his peers in the Senate. The Justice Department may have something to say about his alleged law violations. It is natural that a man should fight for his freedom, for his name and for his career. But how a man fights is also a measure of the man and his worthiness to remain a United States Senator.

Many bills have been introduced to correct Congressional abuses, and have been passed overwhelmingly by both the Senate and House. But with rare efficiency, they have managed never to act in tandem. The House may cast a rousing vote for some improvement which, unfortunately, will get hung up in the Senate — an unspoken arrangement by which one house pigeonholes the other's unwanted reforms. When the legislative slate is wiped clean again in the next session, it will be the Senate's turn to pass reforms and the House's turn to ignore them. Thus, both Senators and Representatives can vote for reforms with full assurance none will be enacted.

GOPers Urging Election Of Endorsed Candidates

Town of Saugerties Republican Club held its second "Bring a Guest Night" recently at Cedar Grove Inn and began planning a fall picnic for September. Chairman of this event is Paul Pavlovich, who says last year's picnic, the first of its kind, brought out 500 people. Hoping to double that number this year, Pavlovich says the picnic will be an old-fashioned family day where Republicans can relax and meet elected officials and current candidates.

In introducing the designated GOP County Legislature candidates at the meeting, Republican Town Chairman Louis Francello said the party candidates represent four geographical segments of the town in an effort to give the best possible overall representation. Taking bows as candidates for this office in November were: Peter Williams, supervisor of Saugerties, from the western section of town; attorney William Brinnier, current justice of the peace, of the village section; Freeman Lasher, local businessman and bank trustee, representing the northern portion; Clifford Snyder, of IBM, from the southern section.

Urges Solid Backing
Francello urged club members to solidly back the slate and pledged a unified campaign for both the June 20 primary and November election.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Seymour Werblowsky, County Commissioner of Elections, who spoke on the importance of having men in the Legislature who have experience such as those in Saugerties, and on "New Election Law Problems."

George Turner, president of the club, pledged its support in working with the Town Committee prior to and on Primary Day to assure the election of the four endorsed candidates. He noted that only four men out of the five named appearing on the ballot can be elected; said he felt the four officially designated would assure fair and equal geographical representation based on experience, Republican loyalty and party unity.

The club meets next on June 15 at the VFW Hall with a program of speeches by the four designated Republican candidates for the Legislature: Snyder, Lasher, Brinnier and Williams.

3 Groups Vie For Stadium

If all goes as planned Dietz Stadium should be the scene of wild disorder on Saturday, June 10, for on that day Joe Pepitone of the N. Y. Yankees may be slashing out a few line drives past some mildly surprised elephants of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus smack into an expensive porcelain vase put on display by an unsuspecting antique show group.

This unusual display of chaos was the result of a mixup of plans wherein the Mental Health Association's Antique show, the Knights of Columbus' Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus and the Kingston opening of the Interstate Baseball League, featuring Joe Pepitone making a guest appearance, have all been scheduled to use the stadium on the same day.

At press time, City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle was en route to the office of Aaron E. Klein, Kingston's corporation counsel, in an attempt to iron out the problem.

Frank Campochiaro, attorney for the Knights of Columbus, said that, "We are going to resolve it if we possibly can . . . if not, then somebody will have to go to court."

Attorney Aaron Klein believes, however, that everything will be straightened out in a short time and he mentioned that there were "other parks, other private properties that can be used."

The opinion was expressed that the courts would not have to be used.

3 Groups Vie For Stadium

If all goes as planned Dietz Stadium should be the scene of wild disorder on Saturday, June 10, for on that day Joe Pepitone of the N. Y. Yankees may be slashing out a few line drives past some mildly surprised elephants of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus smack into an expensive porcelain vase put on display by an unsuspecting antique show group.

This unusual display of chaos was the result of a mixup of plans wherein the Mental Health Association's Antique show, the Knights of Columbus' Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus and the Kingston opening of the Interstate Baseball League, featuring Joe Pepitone making a guest appearance, have all been scheduled to use the stadium on the same day.

At press time, City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle was en route to the office of Aaron E. Klein, Kingston's corporation counsel, in an attempt to iron out the problem.

Frank Campochiaro, attorney for the Knights of Columbus, said that, "We are going to resolve it if we possibly can . . . if not, then somebody will have to go to court."

Attorney Aaron Klein believes, however, that everything will be straightened out in a short time and he mentioned that there were "other parks, other private properties that can be used."

The opinion was expressed that the courts would not have to be used.

The New Masonic Building on Center Street is nearing completion and is expected that by July 1 it will be entirely finished.

The building is made of stone, brick, wood, and stucco. The stone porch supports the pillars of the temple of the Wawarsing Lodge 582.

Entrance to the building will be from Canal Street where parking is available.

The door in the center opens into a vestibule and another door inside leads to the lobby. The lodge room is 40 by 60 feet.

Stairs from the lobby lead to the basement which is a full cellar where the dining area, kitchen and utility rooms are located.

The building is 72 feet in length and 42 feet in diameter.

Sunday Dinner Cost Is Lower
The average cost of preparing a Sunday dinner at home for a family of four in the New York-Northeastern New Jersey area was today estimated by Herbert Biensstock, regional director of the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, at from $3.72 to $5.01 in April 1967 depending on whether you use chicken or rib roast as an entrée.

The rib roast dinner at $5.01 in April cost 4 cents less than in the previous month, and 28 cents less than in April 1966. The chicken dinner at $3.72 in April 1967 cost 1 cent less to prepare than in March, 25 cents less than in April a year earlier.

With average hourly earnings of factory production workers in the New York area at an estimated $2.86 in April, the typical factory worker had to work one hour and 45 minutes to buy the food quantities required for the rib roast dinner and one hour and 18 minutes for the chicken dinner. This compares with an hour and 56 minutes of work time required to purchase components of the rib roast dinner in April 1966 and one hour and 27 minutes for the chicken dinner, based on average earnings of $2.77 an hour in April 1966.

Taxpayers Congratulate Arnold on Bond Issue

Congratulations were offered to Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of the Saugerties Central Schools, by Sy Kruzansky, chairman of the Independent Taxpayers Committee, following a public meeting this week in the local high school cafeteria.

At the meeting the superintendent had announced that the $1,795,000 bond issue has been approved by the State Department of Education and will be voted upon by Saugerties residents June 29.

According to architect Albert Milliken, this means that the new facilities, if approved, should be available for use by September 1969, Kruzansky noted.

"We understand that this public meeting was the first of several scheduled meetings, to educate the public to the need for adequate facilities, and we hope that everyone with children in the schools will attend," Kruzansky said.

The chairman of the Taxpayers Committee, which supported a slate of three candidates during the recent School election, also pointed out that the tax rate will not go up significantly. "Since the interest rate to be paid by the school system is an extremely low rate, compared to what we would pay as individuals, the rate will not be changed substantially," Kruzansky said. He also made note of Dr. Arnold's statement that 67 per cent of the cost of this bond issue will come from the State of New York.

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

In testimony to Congress shortly before the outbreak of the Egyptian-Israeli crisis, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's men said they had gone slow in selling arms to Israel.

The reasoning: Such sales might antagonize the Egyptians, upset the uneasy balance in the Middle East and lead to an arms race.

Meanwhile, Egypt and Syria continued importing considerable amounts of arms from the Soviet Union.

The McNamara men finally decided to sell, they said, barely enough arms to Israel to enable that country to just hold its own.

The McNamara policy did not achieve its objectives. Holding back on arms to Israel did not prevent the Soviet Union from selling sizable amounts of arms to the Egyptians and Syrians. It did not prevent Nasser from setting up a partial blockade of Israel. No one can prove, of course, that the furnishing of more arms to Israel would have produced better results. But there's a chance that it could have.

There may be a parallel here in the discussions on setting up a U. S. antiballistic missile system.

In testimony before Congress the past few years, defense men have made it clear that a major McNamara objection to a large U. S. antimissile defense system is that this step-up in U. S. defense would, he believes, make the Russians suspicious, upset the uneasy missile-arms balance, lead to an arms race and leave us no better off.

This is similar to the argument McNamara's aides used in going slow on selling arms to Israel.

This unilateral go-slow on defense policy (the hold-down on building additional missiles and the holdup on building anti-missile systems) was developed by the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency in a series of research papers over a number of years.

The theory held that if the United States slowed to a stop in building intercontinental ballistic missiles and if the United States refrained from building an antimissile system, the Russians would slow down their production of ICBMs and would not set up an ABM system.

The Russians did not operate according to plan. Instead, Moscow stepped up the building of ICBMs and the construction of hard-to-penetrated ICBM sites. The Russians are building an ABM system.

Seek Approval For New Well Site in Ulster

Approval by the New York State Water Resources Commission will be sought by Ulster Town Board of the new well sites and plans for a pumping station in connection with the Ulster Water District expansion program.

Attorney Seymour Werblowsky was retained by the board at the monthly meeting Thursday night to make the application.

The action was taken after the board had reviewed the plans for the water district approved by J. Kenneth Fraser and Associates of Rensselaer, Advertisement for bids will be published June 7 and 14 and will be opened by the Town Board at its July 6 meeting.

A part of the improvement and expansion plan has been completed. The 1,500,000 gallon storage tank is now in use. On completion of the entire project it is expected the water system will be ample to care for expanded industry and other developments in the water district.

The board authorized the signing of a binder for the purchase of 6½ acres of land as a site for a new town garage and future town office building. The present town garage is unable to house all of the town equipment and much of the equipment must be parked in the open. Several sites have been viewed by the officials. The site on which a binder will be taken is on Mulvin Drive and borders Route 209 in the vicinity of the IBM plant.

In the event a new town garage is erected, the present garage will continue to be used for town equipment and the Ulster Water District. The new location will give direct access to main highways.

Local Student Named French Award Winner
The American Association of Teachers of French at Linton High School, Schenectady, recently announced results of the national examination given by the association.

David Krause, a senior at Kingston High School, was judged second in the IVth year exam and will be awarded his prize at the awards assembly on June 8 at Kingston High School. A certificate was also awarded to the teacher, Miss Kathryn Fellows, for preparing the winning contestant.

At the same meeting Miss Fellows was invited to attend a meeting on June 3, 1967 with the head of the language department of New York State. The meeting, which will be attended by language chairmen from several cities, has been called to review the new curriculum concerning credit for language courses. Miss Fellows is one of only eight teachers in the State to be selected to attend this meeting.

Degrees will be given on June 17 at the Highland Grange by the Little Britain Grange Degree Team and at Plattekill Grange on June 29 by the local Degree Team.

Something for Everyone
From outside we heard a marble carving going for $75 a boat shaped comote for $45, a pair of Delft vases for $85, a pitcher and pewter top for $65, a vintage 1877, for $15.

Obviously, there were some very valuable things that could bring thousands but there were also some things that anyone could buy.

Would the new owner, who had ordered the house cleared of its Victorian relics, repaint the flaking green shutters that curtained every window, we wondered? For there will be a new owner. The Investment Corporation of Philadelphia has bought the estate and all its 630 acres and firm's president, will use the estate as a weekend residence. Reportedly, the purchase price was more than $250,000 and John B. Tieder of the Lasher Real Estate Agency in Rhinebeck, who handled the sale, believes the transaction to be the largest land transfer in Northern Dutchess County's history.

When the auction ends today or Monday, it will spell the end of an era—the Victorian era of "Steen Valetje." But "Steen" itself will live on—without its bird's-eye maple bedroom furniture, mahogany wardrobes, Pier mirrors, Vieux Paris dinner service and bronze candelabra.

And auctioneer Gilbert will move on to bridge the centuries just as "Steen" is doing. Leaving the remnants of 1850 behind, he heads for New York on Tuesday, June 13, to auction off the entire composing room equipment of the long-silent New York Herald Tribune. Instead of hawking pink marble busts of Roman gentlemen as he has been doing at Barrytown, he'll be asking once again, "Are you ALL done?" as modern-day linotype machines, matrix fonts, steel-topped make-up tables and galley trays go on the block.

An Era Ends With 'Steen' Auction

wiches, soda and home baked desserts.

It was a vivid, fair weather, and sometimes confused scene as buyers and spectators jammed the ground, children complained, parents scolded, friends bickered over Oriental lacquered trays and early red pottery oil lamps and men on duty from the Dutchess County Sheriff's Office answered endless questions from besieged positions.

Signs everywhere warned that this was still a working farm with animals and crops and instructed the auction-bound shoppers to keep to the main premises. The inside of the manor house remained off limits too, but we toured the "mystery palace" with auctioneer Gilbert.

Gilbert, a resident of Garrison-on-Hudson, has become one of the nation's most widely known auctioneers and appraisers during his 40 year career. He followed his father into the field; sold coins only at his first job in 1928. He has auctioned off some of the largest estates and institutions in the country for a combined total of sales of more than $75 million over the years. He thinks all auctions "are fun and all are different," and he has little use for the skill-type auctioneer who excels at raising prices in fictitious, fractured English.

Pottery and Folding Beds
He was particularly pleased that day that the Roman things were moving well; said the pottery pieces were bringing as much as $200 each and the smaller ones at least $30. The previous day old-fashioned folding beds had sold like hot cakes and the sterling and plated silver due on the block shortly was expected to move well. Some $30,000 had already been rung up in the first two days.

Sales soared to $70,000 on the third day of the public auction and helping them to zoom upward were two 19th Century Italian paintings, which brought some $3,300 each.

The walls of the house and the vines completely obscuring its front porch drowned out all but the most obnoxious sounds from outside. Priceless tapestries (one covering an entire wall and showing Hannibal crossing the Alps), paintings that served almost as a substitute for wallpaper — so closely and in such profusion were they hung, carved rosewood sofas and chairs, inlaid walnut cabinets, gilded chests with painted knights and castles, Turkish rugs, porcelains, silver, sculpture and objets d'art vied for attention.

The estate was last owned by the late Leila B. Delano; whose husband was the late Lyman Delano, a cousin of president Franklin D. Roosevelt. In the summer of 1942 it was the scene of an historic visit when Queen Wilhelmina and President Roosevelt were entertained at tea by the Delanos.

In the west parlor, we gingerly tested the same parlor suite on which they sat, a suite slated for auctioning today—the last day unless a short sale is required Monday. We ran a finger across the signed inscription on Fraser's "Vanishing American" which depicts a forlorn Indian slumped astride his horse at the end of the trail—and stared for long minutes at an 18 light crystal Waterford chandelier that was not to be believed.

We leafed through a pile of old books dating back to the early 1800's and wondered idly who would carry home the stuffed peacock atop the mantle. We listened to Anne Gilbert, the auctioneer's wife, talking about the early grave-stones which had been found in the cellar.

From outside we heard a marble carving going for $75 a boat shaped comote for $45, a pair of Delft vases for $85, a pitcher and pewter top for $65, a vintage 1877, for $15.

Obviously, there were some very valuable things that could bring thousands but there were also some things that anyone could buy.

Plan Kitchen To Minimize Work; Consider Workspace

If you're remodeling your kitchen, don't begin and end with appliances. There are other considerations as important to kitchen efficiency as the latest model range.

Since the kitchen is primarily a workroom, it should have a time-and-step-saving layout, spacious work counters, sufficient and convenient storage and easy-to-clean surfaces. Because a homemaker spends most of her time there, the kitchen should also be comfortable and attractive.

Here are suggestions for an efficient work-saving kitchen:

LAYOUT—Most experts favor the "work triangle" design. This means placing the three work centers—cooking, clean-up and refrigerator—at approximately equidistant points of a triangle, with no more than seven feet between each major appliance. Tests show that this arrangement substantially cuts time and backtracking while providing plenty of elbow room.

WALLS—Plastic-surfaced hardboard paneling is a practical choice for hard-wear kitchen walls. The material is sturdy, stain and mar-resistant, and can be kept clean with a damp cloth. The panels also resist moisture and the high humidity conditions common in kitchens.

They are available in a variety of prefinished wood-grains, decorator colors, simulated tiles, patterns and textures.

WORKSPACE—There should be at least 30 inches of countertop area near the sink for dishes and food preparation; about 18 inches on the latch side of the refrigerator so you can set down food; and about 24 inches of heat-resistant work surface along the range for pots and pans.

STORAGE—Place overhead cupboards at a convenient height so there will be a minimum of reaching and climbing on step stools. Modern cabinets rarely extend to the ceiling. For additional storage, build a handy working wall with a panel of perforated hardboard which can be applied with adhesive or nailed to furring strips to allow ½ inch clearance in back. When fitted with hooks, the storage wall holds pots, pans, cooking forks, ladles and the like—items that are continually used and should be kept at hand.

Whipped Toppings

Whipped topping on a dessert in recent times is not necessarily made from whipped heavy cream. Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist points out that today whipped products can be made from sterilized whipping cream, cream or vegetable oil-based liquids in pressurized cans, dry vegetable oil-based mixes, frozen vegetable oil-based liquid, evaporated milk, and non-fat dry milk as well as from the standard pasteurized heavy cream. Each of these varies in the cost, convenience, calorie content and character. You will want to know some things about each to make a wise decision the next time you buy a product for a whipped topping.

Whipping Cream: Pasteurized 36 per cent milk fat has traditionally been used for whipping. It will double to triple in volume when whipped. Cold cream in a chilled bowl whips easily without other ingredients to form a product with a smooth, thick glossy foam. Sugar and other flavorings may be added. Keep whipped cream refrigerated and use soon. Liquid usually begins to drain within an hour. If heavy cream is kept in the refrigerator up to 48 hours it will whip to a greater volume with greater stability than fresh cream. It should then be used within a few days for best quality.

The advantage of whipped heavy cream is its flavor, not usually matched by the non-cream toppings. Heavy cream has a relatively high cost and a calorie count...important points to those watching their budget or their weight.

To meet the problem of keeping heavy cream fresh, stable whipped whipping cream is in some New York supermarkets. This product is made from heavy cream blended with skim milk to form a product with 30 per cent milk fat. Canned or bottled under aseptic conditions, the unopened container of cream can be refrigerated for several months without danger of spoilage. It is somewhat lower in calorie content than whipped pasteurized heavy cream.

Whipped Topping and Cream in Pressurized Cans: Whipped cream in pressurized cans was first introduced in 1947. Today vegetable oil-based toppings are also packaged in aerosol cans. These items are true convenience foods...you simply remove the can from the refrigerator, shake it, and squirt out the whipped product.

Nitrous oxide alone or in combination with carbon dioxide is the most commonly used propellant. The cream is whipped when the propellant gas expands as the cream is released through the nozzle.

The fluffy foam produced from the pressurized can is not as stable as whipped heavy cream. This is because you don't have the hand beating which builds up fat particles until they become stiff. Because of the lack of stability, the topping should be released just before serving.

The cost of packaging and adding the propellant makes pressurized cans of cream and topping more expensive than other forms of whipped products. Pressurized cans of whipping cream sell for more than pressurized vegetable oil-based topping.

It is impossible for the entire contents to be expelled from the pressurized cans; from 10 to 25 per cent of the contents remain in the cans after the pressure is exhausted. To counteract this effect most companies fill their cans with enough liquid so that the net weight shown on the can should equal the dispensable contents. Calculations can be made which indicate that the pressurized cream and toppings each contain approximately 20 calories per tablespoon.

Whipped Topping Mixes: Dry whipped topping mixes are whipped with milk and vanilla to form a very stable foam. They were first introduced about 15 years ago in answer for a product with more stability than whipped cream. Their whipability is more uniform than that of heavy cream; they resist "weeping" or collapsing; and they can be frozen and thawed without breakdown.

The many ingredients in the topping mixes are listed on the package in descending order of prominence. Sugar is used to raise the solids content and to give sweetness.

The fats used are of plant origin—often a blend of imported and domestic vegetable oils. Whipping agents (emulsifiers) are used to hold the liquid between the bubbles. Various stabilizers are added to help maintain the foam.

Topping mixes are sold in boxes containing foil envelopes of the mix. A 2 to 2½ ounce packet of mix whipped with ½ to ¾ cup of milk will yield about 2 to 2½ cups of topping. Convenience is an advantage of the topping mixes. The unopened envelopes of mix have a very long shelf life. Once whipped, they will hold up for a day or so in the refrigerator and need only to be stirred before serving. The whipping process is no more convenient than whipping cream.

A low-calorie topping mix has recently been seen in one market. It is sweetened with non-nutritive ingredients and contains about half the calories of regular whipped topping. One 1½ ounces envelope whipped with ½ cup of cold water (instead of milk) yields about 2 cups of topping.

THE FRONTIER LEAGUE ACHIEVED a historic breakthrough with the first $1,000 payoff for a local league championship. There are the amateur purists who will maintain that this kind of payoff is excessive and negates the amateur spirit of non-professional bowling. The American Bowling Congress has taken cognizance of the situation by instituting a maximum $1,000 payoff. It's nice to harvest that kind of money, but let's not let the sole object in amateur bowling—winning the championship—is still the same old mount goal. When money becomes the sole object, then somebody is missing the point.

Hemphill Pinpoints Biggest Woes: Resident Relocation and Demolition

By CHARLES R. DOUGLAS

Human factors said to be inevitably involved in relocation of families from urban renewal areas and the usual "go go go" tempo usually required by demolition contractors are largely responsible for recent conflict between Kingston's Urban Renewal Agency and federal officials, it was noted Friday.

"Our main difficulties," says Eric Hemphill, KURA executive director, "is in two areas, relocation and demolition. Our relocation has been a large project, and not an easy job. There were 361 families involved, and demolition has been an equally large project."

Another observation comes from Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan who notes that Kingston and Tuckahoe are the only two communities in the state which do not have a mayor on an urban renewal agency. In the lat-

Education Important Future Farmers Told

"A variety of opportunities lie ahead for the young man interested in agriculture and to pursue those opportunities every young man should have a broad education."

That was the advice of a former Ulster County Farm Bureau manager to the members of Kingston Chapter, Future Farmers of America, at their father and son banquet Thursday at SRS Home, Cottekill.

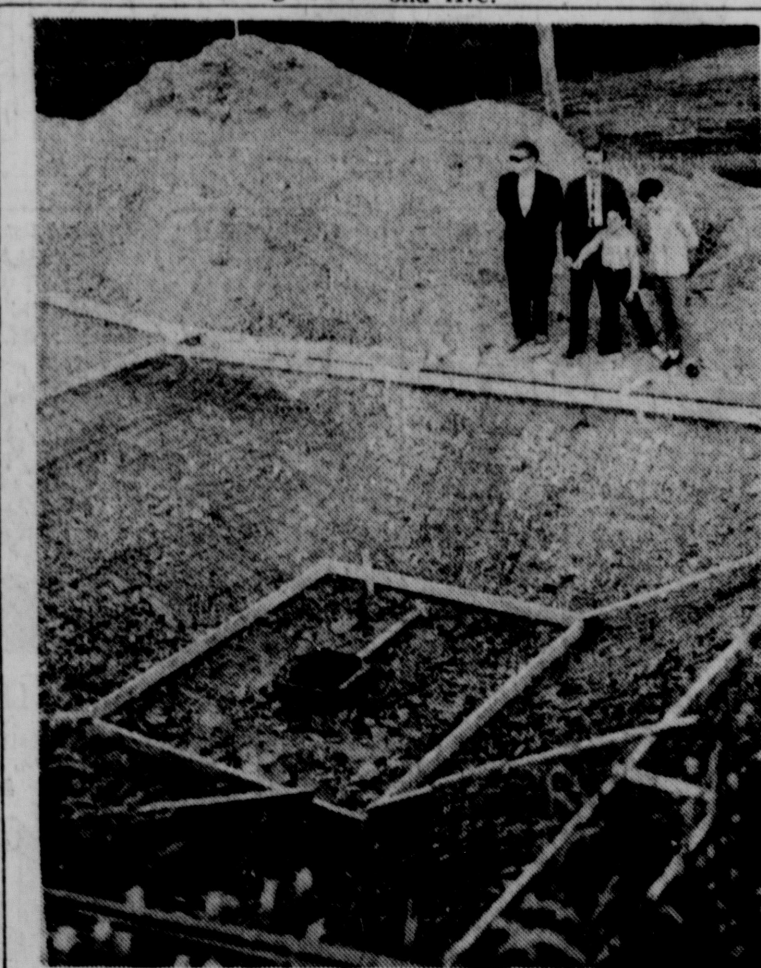

Albert Kurdt, executive assistant to the commissioner, New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, and former Ulster County farm agent and later executive vice president of Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, was the speaker.

There were over 75 fathers, mothers and sons in attendance at the affair. Carl Bodie, president of Kingston Chapter, FFA, presided. After presenting Raphael Klein, director of Vocational Education in the Kingston school system, Klein spoke briefly and introduced the speaker.

Stressing the importance of agriculture, Kurdt spoke of the many opportunities which surround that field today. Not only is there an opportunity on the farm but numerous related positions open. Among them is merchandising of farm equipment, and sale and packaging of farm produce and many other allied jobs.

"But you can't get anywhere today without a good education," Kurdt said. "It pays to do that little extra," the speaker said and he stressed that opportunities are better today for one who applies themselves to a job.

Although the number of farms has declined in the past 20 years, the size of the farms has increased and income per farm has increased. Farming has be-

Repairs Slated for UR Walks

Downtown's Broadway East urban renewal area is to get temporary sidewalk repair starting Monday.

It will be done by the Callan Road Improvement Company, of New Salem Road, under contract to the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency and will involve sections of Newkirk and Hasbrouck Avenues, Chambers Street, East Strand and Broadway.

Some 700 linear feet of sidewalk damaged by demolition work is also to be repaired and paid for by the William M. Young & Co., Inc., of Newark, N. J., demolition contractor. This work is due to start within a few days. Some of it will be deferred until heavy equipment is moved from the area.

One sidewalk will extend between Hasbrouck Avenue and Maple Street across the lower end of the former Saralnik junkyard. No sidewalk was in that area before and the temporary one will benefit children moving to and from the John F. Kennedy School.

Residents of the downtown project area will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. with urban renewal officials in the Community Center, 97 Broadway, to discuss relocation and the rights and responsibility of people involved. The meeting is sponsored by the KURA and the Ulster County Community Action Committee.

She was taken to Community Hospital in Ellenville and treated for lacerations of the scalp and contusions. Her condition was described as fair. Officers Jack Phillips and Norman Green investigated and reported the vehicle was driven by Gene Permetta of Roscoe.

Motorist Is Cited

Milestone: Elsworth

23 Admitted as Citizens

Twenty-three foreign born residents were admitted to citizenship this week before Supreme Court Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth in impressive ceremonies conducted at the County Court House.

Following their taking the oath of allegiance, the newly admitted citizens were congratulated by Judge Elsworth on their attaining full citizenship.

Many had overcome and surmounted great obstacles to join the family of American citizens. Judge Elsworth said, and their admission to citizenship "marks a milestone" in their individual lives.

Great Opportunity

Reminding the group that the roots of our country came originally from foreign lands, Judge Elsworth said it was from this beginning that we raised our foundation of democracy to become one of the greatest nations of the world. He reminded them of the great opportunity which lies before them, and cautioned them that through hard work and devotion to their new homeland the future holds forth great benefits. He said that it was by American citizens working together that America had become a great country. To receive the full benefit of citizenship he said they must be responsible, competent citizens working to keep our country strong.

"Strength of country depends on loyalty of its citizens," Judge Elsworth said, and he remarked he knew those who had been accepted into full citizenship "will accept the responsibilities of citizenship" and he extended the hand of welcome to them.

In closing Judge Elsworth thanked all those who had participated in the welcoming ceremonies, noted that there had been present at the ceremonies members of the sixth grade of Kingston Public School No. 8, who were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Herbert Low.

Participating in the ceremony were members of the Kingston High School Chorus, Linda Cooper and Diane Van Aken sopranos; Sharon Reilly and Debra Pratt, altos; Richard Krom and John Gumaer, tenors, and John Millham and William Kilquist, bass. The bugler was Robert Cole.

Members of Troops 10 and 12, Boy Scouts, served as ushers. They were Scout William Gemmell, Star Scout and senior Leader Troop 12; Explorer Solomon Edwards, 1st class and Junior Scoutmaster, troop 12; Scout William Nyulassey, Star Scout and Patrol Leader, Troop 12; Scout Victor Nyulassey, Star Scout and Patrol Leader, Troop 10; Scout Richard White, Patrol Leader, Troop 12; Scout Ted Spader, 1st class, Assistant Senior Patrol Leader, troop 12.

Attending the ceremonies were Mrs. Lewis Gaylord, Saugerties Chapter DAR, and Mrs. Mary E. Smith, On-ti-tora Chapter, DAR, Catskill.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary of Kingston participated in the ceremony. Serving as guards at the advancement of the Colors were Mrs. Lloyd Barley and Mrs. William Jordan.

Flag Bearer was Mrs. Douglas Edwards. Banner Bearer was Mrs. William DuBois. The commands were given by Mrs. Edward Arnold, president of the Auxiliary. Also attending as guests were Mrs. Richard Whalen and Miss Goldie Nyulassey.

Those admitted to citizenship from Ulster County were:

New Citizens
Joseph Macchione, Gerard Hubert Richter, Providenza Nacri, Barbara Ann Roggio, Margaret Antonia Salimone, Helmut Julius Gieschl, Elsie Gaerwald Wagner, Erna Lynda Oswald, Leocadio Antonio Guanzo, Brunhilde Luise Goeller, Mechthild Edelgard Anna Schulz, Maureen Teresa Walenciewicz, Lily Roseina Kearney, Peter Engelmann, Gertrude Eilmes, Salvatore Tornatore. Dutchess GI Killed in Viet

Army Sgt. William W. Money Jr., 20, of Deep Hollow Road, Millbrook, was killed in action in Vietnam Wednesday, the Defense Department announced Friday.

Money's mother said the youth was serving with the First Cavalry, Airmobile Division at Anh Ke, South Vietnam. He was a mortar specialist and had been in Vietnam for six months.

Money observed his 20th birthday on May 7 and had recently been promoted to sergeant. He is the seventh Dutchess County man killed in the Vietnam War.

A telegram from the Defense Department said that Sgt. Money was killed "on a combat operating operation in a firefight with hostile forces," Mrs. Money told newsmen.

THE COLORFUL WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT

FULL WEEK'S TV LISTINGS FOR WEEK OF JUNE 4th THRU JUNE 10th

To everyone it's "Emmy" night, but officially the June 4 bow of television to its own is "The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences Awards." ABC's Joey Bishop plays host in Hollywood, NBC's Hugh Downs dittoes in New York.

Sunday Night: Emmy Awards — Television's Bow to Its Talent

NEW YORK

By DON ROYAL

It all started with Shirley Dinsdale.

You don't see Miss Dinsdale and Judy Splinters on the television logs any more, but in 1949 they helped to inaugurate the 1st Annual Emmy Awards, television's highest honor for its own. Shirley Dinsdale was named most outstanding television personality (Judy Splinters, Miss Dinsdale's puppet, didn't receive a separate Emmy).

Classifications have grown from five categories in that first presentation to the 23 entertainment awards to be presented on ABC's live colorcast of the event Sunday, June 4, 9-11 p. m. Eastern time.

The statuette itself was designed by a man named Louis McManus, who used his wife as a model. Since the movies use a male figure, "Oscar," McManus felt that television should have a woman, and his design was selected from a number submitted.

The name of this much-cherished lady comes from the television camera, which uses an image orthicon electronic tube — called an "immy" for short.

The first award was made in Hollywood only; for the 19th Annual Awards, both coasts will be represented. ABC's Joey Bishop presides at the Century Plaza Hotel, Hollywood; NBC's Hugh Downs does the host bit from New York's Americana Hotel.

For the first time, "Emmy" gets two hours of air time for making the major awards. The show's producers — Sid Smith and Dick Dunlap (Dunlap also produced the Oscar awards on ABC this year), promise a new approach to entertainment and setting aspects of the program.

The stars who will be waiting for the results on Emmy Night were mostly unknown to television in 1949. The names of Alan Arkin, Hal Holbrook, Geraldine Page, Julie Harris, Bill Cosby, David Janssen, Barbara Bain, Diana Rigg, Don Adams, Larry Storch, Elizabeth Montgomery and Marlo Thomas would have been as unfamiliar then as the name Shirley Dinsdale is to the youngsters of today.

Not all the nominated stars are newcomers, of course—Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, who won honors in 1952, are among the nominees for outstanding variety special this year. And Lucille Ball, named best comedienne in 1953, is a nominee this time for outstanding performance by an actress in a leading role in a comedy series.

A number of programs and stars which won Emmys last year are nominated again this year — "The Andy Williams Show," "The Bob Hope Christmas Special," "Frank Sinatra: A Man and His Music" (Part II this time), and two different Charlie Brown specials.

The stars who have a chance to win their second in a row are Barbara Stanwyck of "The Big Valley," Bill Cosby of "I Spy," Don Knotts for the "Andy Griffith Show," and Dick Van Dyke—who could win his fourth in a row.

The first awards ceremonies to be broadcast coast-to-coast in 1955 didn't pass out statuettes to any of this year's nominees, but that year's best actor in a regular series has a daughter who is presently a nominee as best actress in a comedy series.

The father, Danny Thomas; the daughter, Marlo Thomas, of "That Girl."

This season's new show, "ABC Stage 67," is in the running with five nominations—the MARLO THOMAS, ABC's "That Girl" has been nominated for an EMMY for her continuing role in "THAT GIRL". The Annual Emmy Awards, telecast this year from Hollywood and New York, airs Sunday evening June 4th—9-11 p. m. Eastern Time.

nominations are for Alan Arkin (who had never played a leading role on television before), Harry Belafonte's look at Negro humor in America called "A Time for Laughter," Geraldine Page for her performance in Truman Capote's "A Christmas Memory," and both "Christmas Memory" and "The Love Song of Barney Karpinski" (which starred Arkin) as outstanding dramatic program.

NBC's "I Spy," which again brought acting nominations for both Cosby and Bob Culp, is the only other weekly series carrying five nominations (including one for Bob Culp as a writer.)

The members of the academy and its president, Royal E. Blakeman, take considerable pride in the care with which names of winners are kept secret until the moment the envelopes are torn open, and that element of surprise for the winner has contributed more than one funny moment to the presentations.

When Groucho Marx won as most outstanding personality, for instance, he swept up the presenter — a former Miss America — and carried her off instead of the statuette.

Joey Bishop, this year's host, was officiating the night Barbara Stanwyck won her first Emmy (for "The Barbara Stanwyck Show"). She was so excited that she leaped from her seat—and ripped her dress. The gentleman next to her took so long making emergency repairs that Joey mourned, "This guy has been on camera longer than I have!"

Multi-Oscar-winner Shelly Winters, accepting her Emmy, completely confused the issue by thanking "the motion picture industry" for the award.

Carl Reiner, the comic writer-producer whose hair line is receding much faster than his talent (he is a nominee again this year), accepted his Emmy in 1962 and exclaimed, "If I'd known this was going to happen I'd have worn my hair."

The Television Academy carries out a long and careful process to select the winners of this daughter of the camera, "Emmy." First, programs and individual artists and craftsmen were entered for their achievements from March 25, 1966 to April 16, 1967. Next, the 6,000 members of the academy voted to select the Emmy Award nominees. Finally, the nominees were viewed by blue ribbon panels, composed of representatives of the various arts and sciences of television, motion pictures, the theater and the academic world.

Only after all this were the winners of the Awards selected.

Besides 23 categories, awards are also presented in 10 "general" areas, such as news, daytime and sports programming, and the various crafts. Television Academy members working in these areas select the nominees in their own fields. Each area can have more than one winner.

This year, for the first time, achievements in educational television are entered in regular competition with achievements in commercial television, instead of being judged separately.

The importance of local television programming is also recognized by the Television Academy. The nominated stations and programs for this year's station award are:

"A Baby Is A Wonderful Thing," WBAL-TV, Baltimore; "The Face of Genius," WBZ-TV, Boston; "I See Chicago," The Illinois Voter's Test, WBBM-TV, Chicago; "The Road to Nowhere," KLZ-TV, Denver; "Medal of Valor," KTTV, Hollywood; "Assignment: 1747 Randolph Street," WFIL-TV, Philadelphia; "The Golden Cal," KWG-TV, Portland, Oregon; "The Lengthening Shadow," KSD-TV, St. Louis; and "Five Civilized Tribes: An Unfinished Journey," KTUL, Tulsa.

And so, on June 4, while creative and technical talents of television sit, on edge, to see and hear the judgement of their fellows for two suspenseful hours, they will have much company.

IT'S JOEY BISHOP, from Hollywood and HUGH DOWNS, from New York, when the EMMY AWARDS are telecast Sunday evening June 4th—9-11 p. m.

Brown Is Not Too Blue

HOLLYWOOD — Despite the delays in taping, due to the recent AFTRA strike, Les Brown was quite pleased with the way NBC-TV's The Best on Record, turned out.

Brown was musical director of the recent special, fourth in the series presented by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

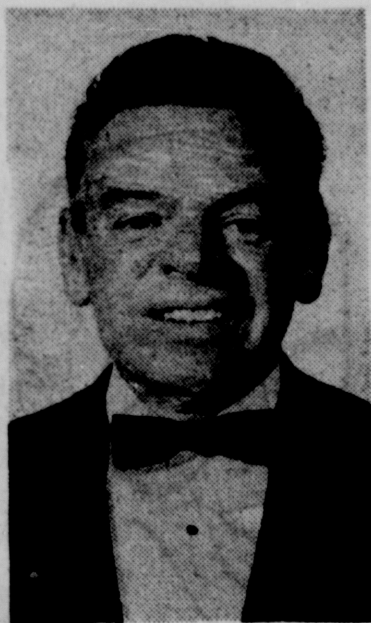

"And the thing I liked about our show is that we have our winners performing," says Brown. "We have no envelopes to open. None of those delays that make the Oscar and Emmy shows look like reruns every year."

The Grammy winners were announced March 2 at four banquets staged simultaneously in Hollywood, New York, Chicago and Nashville.

"If it weren't for television, we might not have made it to this fourth year," Brown admits. "Paul Wesson, our founding father, and I had some doubts when only 400 attended our first awards banquet in Hollywood. But this year we had over 1,000 in Hollywood alone, plus those in three other cities."

The record companies weren't too interested at first, but when they saw what a national awards telecast did for their performers they got behind the Academy founders morally and financially. And their TV sponsor has been with them since the start.

"We don't always get the people we want because some have other commitments," said Brown a bit reluctantly. "We were set to have Frank Sinatra sing

By STAN MAAYS

"Strangers in the Night," but when we contacted him we found that because of his tie-up with a beer company he can't make outside TV shows."

Brown is miffed, too, that some of the members in the classical field of music have refused to come on the shows as presenters.

But people like Robert Preston and Edie Adams, who were presenters this year, are glad to appear, and for free! It's their bow to the Academy's efforts.

Brown says that those who perform on the show do so at a flat fee of $2,000, a figure that is usually far less than they get on show dates.

The famed leader of the "Band of Renown" celebrates his 20th year in association with Bob Hope come September. But aside from Hope's annual overseas Christmas treks, Brown doesn't want to travel any more. "I've even given up those occasional dance dates," he laughs. "About five years ago I got sick of all that bus traveling."

With Brown's average of 50 TV shows a year — including Dean Martin's series, Hope's specials, and others — who needs the one-nighters?

Can't Decide

Bob Denver and CBS are huddling about a series of specials aimed at the kiddie market. The network feels that Bob is a natural, since his Gilligan's Island characterization was a big hit with the very young set. But they can't quite decide whether or not to have Bob host the show as Bob or as Gilligan.

Federico Fellini Subject of Creative Person

Internationally famous film director Federico Fellini — best known in the United States for his films "La Strada," "La Dolce Vita," and "8½" — will be the subject of Creative Person on Channel 17, Sunday, June 11 at 7:30 p. m.

The half-hour program was shot on the set of "Juliet of the Spirits" while this, Fellini's most recent film, was still in production. It represents the only time that Fellini has ever allowed himself to be filmed while working, and it reveals the unique talents and methods of direction he employs.

In an interview, Fellini speaks of his first moments as a director and of his career. Others interviewed include Menecuccio, the chief stage hand who speaks of Fellini's enormous capacity for dealing with people, for work, and his ability to illustrate the problems of life which are closest to him both as a man and as a director. His wife Giulietta Massina, who is the star of "Juliet of the Spirits," candidly describes what it's like to be working again for her husband—the first time since "La Strada" over ten years ago. She comments on the change, the stronger dedication and the genius of Fellini.

The Creative Person — Federico Fellini was produced by Fulco Films, Italy for National Educational Network.

Sometimes it seems the job is 50% walking, 50% waiting, and 50% fighting. It's tough, tiring work. But these brave men believe in it. A majority of our servicemen overseas are helping to pay the bill for freedom through regular purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds. Would you like to show these men their sacrifice is appreciated? You do it—and you walk a bit taller—when you buy Bonds where you bank or join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

"And because this is our last TV show, tonight we'd like to do something daring and different!"

Vic Damone
To Host
Summer Show

HOLLYWOOD—The NBC-TV crew had a surprise gift for Vic Damone the day he reported for first rehearsal of the summer show with TV's longest title, "The Dean Martin Summer Show With Your Host Vic Damone."

Somewhere they had found a Silvertone recording he had made 22 years ago of the songs "Lady Be Good" and "Embraceable You."

The thin little voice out of the past gave everyone, including Vic, a laugh but later, when the singer was alone in his dressing room, the old recording triggered a flood of memories for him.

Memories of replacing the ailing Frank Sinatra on radio's Your Hit Parade; of his first movie in 1950 "Rich, Young and Pretty"; of the night he made his singing debut at the Mocambo in Hollywood, facing an audience of stars and famous singers.

"I also thought," he said, "about the big mistakes I made during those 22 years. But that's the way you grow. God never gives you a problem you can't handle."

That Vic Damone handled his problems well is evident in his still booming career which took him to Vietnam last December as a member of Bob Hope's Christmas tour.

"And this," Vic reported, "is the kind of fellow Bob Hope is. When I started taping this summer series, debuting June 22, a fellow from Bob's office came to me and said 'Bob wants to know if you want him on the show as a guest.'"

"My answer was, 'Are you kidding? You know summer show budgets.' Then he gave me the surprise of my life. He said, 'Forget the money. It isn't money Bob wants. He wants to do the show for YOU because he's grateful to you for touring with him.'"

Oh, yes, Vic cringes, that 1950 movie of his "Rich, Young and Pretty" has played the late, late shows.

"It's incredible," he says. "I looked at it once and I was shocked—I look like my son—he's 12 this year."

People's Recreation

George Vicas, who heads NBC-TV's European documentary unit, told TV Scout how people react when they are on camera.

"I have sat in on an editorial session between a professor and a student in Oxford. After a few minutes they completely forgot the lights and the camera. We did a show with a fashion designer in Paris. We put a cordless mike on him. The first 10 minutes he was obviously conscious of what he was saying. After 20 minutes, my gosh, he was unbelievable. He took his radio mike home and we were recording all along. Then there was a Soviet general in the Kremlin. He forgot we were recording and started giving instructions to his office staff. But there were no state secrets."

Edie Adams Refuses

Edie Adams is not the average ambitious feminine star. She told TV Scout the reason she has consistently turned down offers for TV series: "It requires five days a week, every week, from dawn to dusk, and allows no time for my husband and family. The never compensate for the tremendous exposure could pleasure of their company."

TV Questions & Answers

WIZARDRY — Could you please tell me where I can write to Mr. Wizard who used to be on television regularly?—J. Weidner, Largo, Fla.
You can write to Don Herbert, 220 East 23d St., New York, N. Y. 10010.

SAVE YOUR STAMP—Please tell me where I can write to protest the cancellations of The Invaders? I'd also like to know why a show that is that popular is being dropped?—L. F. St. Paul, Minn.
Someone has led you astray. The Invaders will be back next season, same day, same time.

THE APE MAN—Can you tell us how many Tarzans were in the movies and how many Tarzan movies were made?—J.W., Peoria, Ill.

Thirteen actors played the Ape Man role in a total of 41 feature films. TV's Ron Ely is number fourteen.

MRS. GHOST — Who played opposite Rex Harrison in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir"?—Verna Kohn, Key West, Fla.

Gene Tierney played the part of Mrs. Muir to the Harrison ghost.

IN THE BEGINNING — Did "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" ever play on Broadway and if so, who were the stars?—E.N., Miami, Fla.

ANOTHER WORLD — I am very curious about that lovely person Susan Trustman, who played Pat on Another World. Would you please tell what happened to her and is it possible she may be back?—Janet Dale, Miami, Fla.

Susan literally is seeking Another World. She asked out of her long-term contract on the daytime drama to search out other areas of her profession. It is quite definite that she will not be back.

BOOKED SOLID—Now that The Phyllis Diller Show is going off the air, what will Phyllis be doing? Specially, will she do another series?—B. B. M., Peoria, Ill.

Phyllis told TV Scout that she will definitely not do another series unless something truly outstanding comes up, and she doubts that very, very much. She is booked solid for the next 18 months with motion pictures, TV specials and night clubs.

STAYING HOME — My girl friend says that Ryan O'Neal played in a western series before Peyton Place and that he is leaving to do another. Is it true?—S. J., Riverside, Calif.

Ryan did have a featured role in Empire with Richard Egan, but he has no plans presently to leave his home on Peyton Place. He has said, however, that he would like very much to do another western and would consider offers.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED WANT AD . . .

1. IT'S always best to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, start your advertisement with the location and/or town or city in which it is located.
2. BE clear. Readers respond more quickly and favorably.
3. MAKE it easy for the reader-prospect to reach you, when given complete or definite information. Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.
4. THE greatest reader attention can be secured by your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe—a six-day order is best and the rate is lower! You can stop your ad when you get results and the charge will be adjusted to the appropriate rate.
5. PLACE yourself in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know (about your offer). The answer you give will make a good Classified Want Ad.
6. WANT ads that fail to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

"Honest, I'm a peacock! But you see, when I quit the network I had to turn in my uniform!"

The Many Voices of Sheila

HOLLYWOOD — Alice Kramden finally gets to throw away her apron and kick up her heels a bit.

Sheila MacRae, who is the fourth actress to play Ralph's wife in the Honeymooners skits on The Jackie Gleason Show, has been pretty much confined in the one-dimensional character.

But in Away We Go!, the summer replacement series for Gleason on CBS-TV we get the Sheila of night club fame, who sings, dances and mimics like few others can.

"George Carlin and Buddy Greco are the series regulars," says Sheila talking about the show. "I'll only be in the first and last one. I'm taping both appearances while I'm home."

"I know I'm going to have fun. It opens up with me doing all the voices of the 'Glea-Girls.' In one I'm real sexy. Then I'm like a little ol' Southern gal. Also, in the first one we — George, Buddy and I — do a spoof on awards shows, so naturally I get to do more voices."

Sheila is under personal contract to Gleason for two more years, a fact which makes her quite happy. But there are some restrictions imposed upon her by the "Great One."

"Well, for one thing he won't let me wear a wig," explains Sheila. "He won't even let me be a panelist on Password. And he said 'no' when I was approached to be a host on Hollywood Palace. I don't really know why, but I wasn't about to argue with him."

Sheila says she has pleaded with Gleason to use her more on his show but he tells her, "Sweetheart, I'm paying you good dough. You're Alice, and that's enough!"

Restrictions or no, Miss MacRae's career has escalated since she took over the Alice role from Sue Ann Langdon (who lost out after a short term by becoming openly critical about Gleason), and has benefited from weekly national exposure on TV.

With her stormy marriage to

SHEILA MacRAE

Gordon MacRae at an end, and four grown children fending for themselves, Sheila has time for other pursuits. She's an active sportswoman. Recently got her first check for some published poetry. And she's thinking seriously about writing a beauty column, too.

"You know, I don't think it's fair. All these women who do beauty columns are gorgeous. There's no column for average looking women like me," she protests.

In talking about her show business friends, Sheila, the great mimic almost subconsciously lapses into their voices.

"I do the best Streisand," she reports matter of factly. "And Carol Channing comes easy. But I can't capture Liz Taylor. Her you have to do a cartoon of — with makeup and costume. And I have trouble with Carol Burnett and Dinah Shore."

Have any of these friends resented Sheila's impressions?

"Oh, sure," she answers, smiling. "I bumped into Barbra recently, and she killed me when she said, 'I don't tawk that way anymore.' And, of course, Zsa Zsa is always mad at me. But I'm not worried. We both have the same lawyer."

Ed Nelson Back

Ed Nelson of Peyton Place, came back from his tour of Vietnam with so many souvenirs he said, "I wonder what Bob Hope does after all his trips."

Among Ed's loot: a rhino horn; a Viet Cong flag (given him by a Lieutenant Colonel); a Montagnard crossbow from the Pleiku tribe, complete with poison arrows; two ponji weapons, cone-shaped with barbed wires; 35 assorted pins and emblems; one complete camouflage uniform; a set of grenade launcher shells and a certificate of appreciation from Gen. William Westmoreland.

Peyton Place is not telecast in Vietnam, so Nelson wasn't too well known everywhere. He told of having a casual conversation in a hospital with a wounded GI. The GI saw the fatigues Ed was wearing and asked, "What outfit are you with?"

Brooks Discontented

Stephen Brooks has left The FBI because he was discontented with his status in the series. He occasionally got good lead roles, too, like one in a recent repeat which had him transporting nitroglycerine in a truck.

It is understood that Efram Zimbalist Jr. wanted to play the lead in that particular show because he had a different interpretation in mind. But, as usual, he was a perfect gentleman and didn't pursue the matter.

"My daddy is a TV critic, so I never get to watch any GOOD shows!"

Charlie Brown to John Steinbeck

BY FRANK LANGLEY

NEW YORK—No one can accuse producer Lee Mendelson of television's most common creative ailment: falling into a mold.

The versatile young television executive who has been largely responsible for the great successes of the Charlie Brown TV specials, is currently engrossed in a philosophical filming of John Steinbeck's America and the Americans for NBC-TV.

Mendelson is slightly reminiscent of a hummingbird in that he is always flitting, either around the world or in and out of conversations at a cocktail table.

He recently flitted into New York for last minute work on You're in Love, Charlie Brown, which is due on CBS-TV, Monday, June 12.

During a break in that operation he flew over to Sardi's for some well founded observations on his work and television in general.

"It isn't at all strange to produce Charlie Brown and then John Steinbeck," he noted. "There is a great deal in common between the two."

"I think both Charles Schulz, who created Peanuts, and John Steinbeck have one common trait of genius: both can sum up great and often complex truths in one simple thought that can be understood by all."

Mendelson did, however, admit to some differences in presentation.

"Poor old Charlie Brown runs up against many of life's harshest realities, but they are portrayed gently, through the experiences of children.

"The harsh realities of American life as Steinbeck sees them, are really hard-hitting, sometimes even violent."

"There's one point he makes that I particularly like for it sums up much of what I believe about my own business, television, and its biggest problem: creativity against the corporate structure."

"Only in yearning for greatness," Steinbeck said, "is the corporation helpless."

"I think that anyone who should have that thought foremost in his mind."

The thing foremost in Mendelson's mind at the moment is time. He has become one of the hottest producers in the business and is absolutely ruled by the calendar and the clock.

While putting the finishing touches on Steinbeck's America he is busily mapping out another special on the history and impact of comics. This will incorporate most of America's best known newspaper comic characters from Little Orphan Annie to Major Hoople.

When Mendelson mentioned that Carl Reiner will be host and a well-known team of comedy writers will do the script, he was asked why he hired writers when Reiner has built such a big reputation in that area.

"I want the best of both worlds," he replied, "and that's what I hired. I don't believe in doubling in brass."

I would seem that there is at least one producer in television who really does believe that "if something is worth doing, it is worth doing right."

Julie Christie Stars in All-American Film

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — "Petulia" is an interesting movie in production. Basically, it is a British film—a British company, a British-based director, British technicians in the key spots on the crew—but it is set in the United States and is being filmed entirely on location here.

The cast, with the exception of the major star, Julie Christie, is all American. The script explains her being English in one line. The others — George C. Scott, Richard Chamberlain, Shirley Knight, Arthur Hill, Joseph Cotten—need no such explanation.

At the moment, the company is shooting in Tiburon, a Bay-side town across the Golden Gate bridge. They have rented a lovely mansion on Keil Cove, a big old house with a sweeping view and glorious gardens.

The owners were sent to Europe by the company, so the house would be vacant. That, and a complete inside and outside repainting job, constituted the rental. The owner didn't want money; it might "upset his tax structure."

The company was happy to oblige. The interior redecoration was important. Director Richard Lester—he did the Beatles' films and "The Knack" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum"—believes that he can describe character through the surroundings.

The living room, as production designer Tony Walton (Julie Andrews' ex-husband), decorated it, is a strange amalgam of old and new. It's all white and blue—white walls, rugs, furniture and blue highspots. All the books on the selves have blue bindings. The paintings on the walls feature blue. One very modern painting—two blue sweeps on a white background—Walton knocked off the night before they moved in.

Upstairs, Julie Christie's bedroom is yellow and orange, to reflect the personality Lester wants to convey.

Into this, for three days'

shooting, has come the company. Only it's more than the average movie company. Someone has said that Lester "thrives on chaos," and it would appear to be true. Besides the usual crew, there are uncounted and unidentified hordes of outsiders.

Dozens of languid girls, with miniskirts, daisies in their hair and bare feet showing sooty soles, loll about. Several Height-Ashbury hippies in long hair and sandals and beads swap jokes. Lester doesn't seem to mind, as long as they are quiet during the shooting.

He is a trail-blazing type of director. To do a scene, he usually uses three cameras going at once. Most directors will shoot a master scene, then a close-up, then an over-the-shoulder from one character to another. Lester does them all at the same time.

He achieves two objectives in this way. First, he gets perfect matching; the actors don't have to try to act the same way for each of the three shots since they are all done simultaneously. Second, he cuts down on shooting time. "Petulia" is ahead of schedule.

The producer is unusual, too. Ray Wagner for years was in charge of television pilot production at Universal. He wanted to produce movies. So he bought this property and set about to put together a salable package.

Using his own money, he had a screenplay written. He interested Lester in the project and together they approached Miss Christie. She liked it, too. But the problem was finding a time when both of them would be available.

Wagner had used up all his savings by this time. But he felt he had to go to London to nail down all the loose ends. He borrowed the money for the plane fare.

"It took seven weeks," he says, "the seven most horrendous weeks of my life. Five times the deal fell apart completely. I sat in my hotel room in London and thought of my wife and three children back in Los Angeles and wondered what I was doing there. But when you reach for the moon, you have to take chances. Eventually, we worked it out."

DIRECTOR RICHARD LESTER gives the camera the back of his head as he listens to Julie Christie make a point about their new film, "Petulia."

NAME'S NOT THE SAME— Can you explain why The Jackie Gleason Show is produced by Peekskill Enterprises, which I believe is in New York, when the program is produced in Miami?—G.O., Miami, Fla.

Before moving to Miami, Jackie was the proud possessor of an imposing estate in the Peekskill area of New York. When he moved to Miami he took most of his production crew with him, including the name of his company.

lawyer Lindsey began his career, was a city of corruption and easy money. He was made a judge in 1901, and immediately plunged into the problems of the city. Through his social investigations, reforms were made which not only strengthened the city's legal aspects, but helped to clean out the causes of crime and corruption. Lindsey began with the causes, and gradually weeded out whole patterns of life. He set up one of the country's first juvenile courts, and by publicizing the conditions of the local jails, was able to setup juvenile detention homes to prevent malleable boys from associating with the hardened criminals they had formerly been thrown in with.

Judge Lindsey's search for the causes of crime and misdemeanors led him beyond jurisprudence into social, political and economic reform. His methods were thorough enough to make him thoroughly unpopular with the local underworld set and each time he ran for office, he was abused and berated by the political bosses of Denver.

Despite the traumas of running for office, Lindsey served for 26 years. By 1927, however, the Ku Klux Klan had gained control of Denver politics and ousted him from office. The final humiliation came in 1929 when he was disbarred from practicing law in the state.

David Brian, Edith Atwater and Joseph Ruskin round out the cast.

Gunn Ready to Fire Again

CRAIG STEVENS
... up for four other pictures

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA) — Most actors, when they leave a television series role behind, never want to be reminded of the part again, much less play it again.

Not so Craig Stevens, who had a long run as Peter Gunn in a much-honored television series that stopped production in 1960. Now he has returned to the character in a Paramount movie, soon due for release, called simply, "Gunn."

"A lot of people told me I was out of my mind to do the character again," Craig said. "Others told me I would always be identified with the role and some asked 'Where's the challenge?' Well, I found it a challenge to take a role I had played for several years and not do a re-creation. I'm flattered that, to my knowledge, Blake Edwards, who created the television series, and who produced and directed the movie, never considered anyone else for the role."

After Peter Gunn ceased television production, Craig went to England, where he filmed a series. Then he returned to New York, where he and his wife, Alexis Smith, still make their home and appeared on Broadway in Meredith Willson's musical, "Here's Love."

"It's strange, but now that I have been back to Hollywood to work, people are asking where I have been, as if I'm not alive if I'm not in town. Now, as a result of returning and doing a movie, I'm up for four other pictures. Three are junk and one is marvelous. I also hope to do several Gunns, since I am committed to Edwards for more. But the thing is, now I'm back in the motion picture business."

It may not be Peyton Place, but an island in a lake in New Jersey is home to Tim O'Connor when he has free time from his role as Elliot Carson in the ABC-TV serial.

The water around the island is also a swimming hole for O'Connor, inadvertently more often than not.

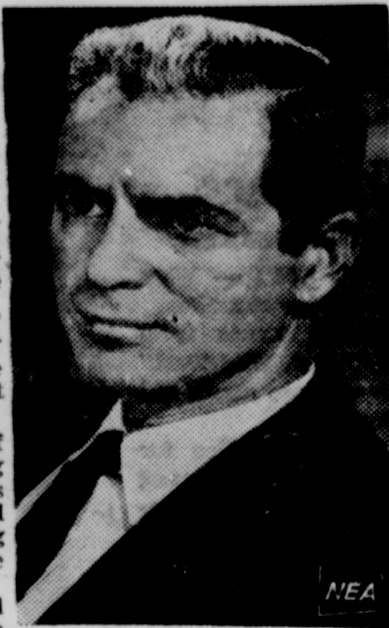

"There's a Chaplinesque thing to some of my spills off the dock," he smiles. "Once I was saying goodbye to some people who had walked to the dock with me. I turned and waved and went in the drink. At the time I was on Broadway and my wife, Mary, was in The Secret Storm. There was a jewelry store right next to the studio where she did the show, and she took my watch in for repairs so often it got so no one would say a word. They just knew I had fallen in again."

Tim, who spent two weeks of his vacation this year touring Vietnam with fellow Peyton-ers Ed Nelson, Chris Connolly and Patricia Morrow, miss not being able to see the season's change on "O'Connor's Island."

"It's so gorgeous covered with snow and ice, and then spring and summer come and they're even more beautiful. In fall it's something else. The water is like glass, and it reflects all the trees and their vivid color."

Despite missing his home, O'Connor is very happy in Peyton Place. Despite his Broadway background, he has discovered there is great honesty in the work of a camera. "I always felt guilty about saying this, because I thought the only rich stuff was on the stage. But when I realized this was not necessarily true, I realized that acting for the camera was something I really wanted to do since I was a kid."

TIM O'CONNOR
'I always felt guilty.'

Power of TV

Norman Jolley, who is associate producer of The FBI, has just received a good example of the power of TV. He is returning to Iowa Wesleyan College to receive an honorary doctorate of literature. It has to be the power of TV, he figures, because he only spent a year there, in 1933. At the same time as Jolley's honor, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther is receiving a degree.

The Tahitian Hell of Paul Gauguin

By FRANK LANGLEY

NEW YORK—America's hippies, the non-conforming social dropouts who have denounced contemporary civilization, have a chance to see what is probably in store for them in the June 6 CBS-TV production, "Gauguin in Tahiti: Search for Paradise."

"Gauguin was undoubtedly one of the unhappiest men who ever lived," said Martin Carr, the energetic young CBS producer who spent a full year documenting the life struggles of the genius artist.

"He denounced his world and civilization to go to the end of the earth in search of a paradise. But all he found was his own personal hell and he lived within its miserable confines for the rest of his life."

Actually, Carr pulled off a triple play with his Gauguin show, for he had not originally intended doing the life of the artist, nor a philosophical treatise on self-gratification.

"I had been to Tahiti several years ago," he said, "and the intrusions of civilization in this supposed paradise struck me with such force that I immediately started planning a program to document that sad fact."

"A while later, back in New York, I went to a Gauguin exhibit and was so impressed by what I saw that I began looking into his life."

"Almost immediately I saw the melding of the two stories."

"Gauguin sought to escape society by going to Tahiti. But civilization was already rooted there, and it was just that that ruined him."

"The planters and traders there would not accept the artistic nomad into their society and the natives shunned him."

"Eventually, he found a native girl and with her he found the only happiness he would ever know on that island."

"But then he contracted syphilis and his mental tortures were joined by physical horrors."

"Oddly enough, the genius of Gauguin did not come from anything he found in Tahiti. It came almost entirely from his imagination."

"On the program, you will see many of his greatest works, painted during those last tormented years. Notice the faces of the people he painted. I think you will see a vacant expression, a yawning, lonely depression in every one."

"Gauguin learned, as many others have and will, that one cannot easily escape civilization."

NEW FREEDOM SHARES

What are they? Who may buy them?

Americans have put their savings to work for freedom through U.S. Savings Bonds for many years. New Freedom Shares do the same job... plus. Read how.

Freedom Shares are U.S. Savings Notes. They pay a higher return than Savings Bonds, 4.74% when held to maturity. And they mature in just four-and-a-half years.

For regular Bond buyers only

These new Freedom Shares—which are not redeemable for the first year—are offered on a one-for-one basis with E Bonds, but only to people who belong to the Payroll Savings Plan where they work or the Bond-a-Month Plan where they bank.

There are four denominations of Freedom Shares, each of which may be paired with a Series E Bond of the same or larger denominations as a "package." For instance, for $39 total, you can purchase a Savings Bond that matures at $25 and a Freedom Share that matures at $25.

America needs your help

When you buy Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares you do an important job for freedom, backing our men in Vietnam and helping to keep the country economically strong. The need is urgent. What you do counts.

Sign up

Tell your supervisor or the Payroll Department where you work (or any officer where you bank) that you'd like to join a Bond purchase plan. Decide how much you'll save... whether you want Freedom Shares as well as Bonds... and just sign the authorization card.

You'll be helping your country as you help yourself. And the country needs your help.

Sees Charades As Practice For Film Stars

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Want to be an actor? Play charades.

The suggestion comes from Ross Martin, "Wild, Wild West" costar and a virtuoso at the old parlor pastime.

"It's marvelous practice for an actor because you must learn to go from your initial impulse — work close to your instincts," he reports.

Before his acting days the emigrant from an East Side New York tenement played charades with friends — in lean, early years simply because it was cheap diversion.

He got so good he once was a regular on TV's now defunct "Stump the Stars."

Two teams of participants acted out gag sayings sent in by viewers. The toughest one Martin ever had to get across to teammates in his allotted two minutes was a pun using his name.

Polish-born, Martin has flexible features helpful at either charades or acting. Head erect, tongue flicking, he's an iguana. Or sleepy-eyed and chewing slowly sideways he's a camel.

His two years on "Stump the Stars" created a public awareness of himself as Ross Martin. Previously, autograph seekers often addressed him as Andamo, the character he had played on the "Mr. Lucky" TV series.

Also, rendering immediate characterizations on the charade show provided unforeseen training for his "Wild, Wild West" assignment. As Artemus Gordon, U.S. secret agent, he has disguised himself in two seasons as 87 characters, as many as five a show.

Martin studies the script, draws sketches of the characters' costumes and features and works out details with makeup and wardrobe men. He has played a 90-year-old clergyman, a scared Mexican gunfighter, even an Indian squaw. Apple segments in his cheeks helped him portray a paunchy under-secretary of state.

Martin formerly was an advertising and marketing instructor, law student, department store researcher and distillery public relations man, in spare time playing occasional charades for fun.

Jerry Paris to Direct

Jerry Paris, who used to play the next door neighbor on The Dick Van Dyke Show, and who began his directing career on the series, is in London where he will direct a Jerry Lewis film, "Don't Raise the Bridge, Lower the Water." He has rented a flat so that his wife and children can be with him. "It's our first trip abroad," he said, "and I'm going to be so busy on the picture that my family will have to tell me about London when we return."

"Listen, that network strike scared 'em! Every pea, potato and hunk of meat in this TV dinner is a union member!"

HOLLYWOOD: Elizabeth Taylor's winning of her Oscar in absentia this year may not mean much to her, but just being in the audience proved a blessing for Austrian beauty Senta Berger who dazzled producers with her presence. As a result of attending the Academy Awards, Senta was signed to star with Dean Martin in Columbia's "The Ambushers" and was offered the title role on Broadway in "Mata Hari". UPI TELEPHOTO

Jan Shepard Looking for Screen Role

By STAN MAAYS

HOLLYWOOD — When NBC's The Road West ran into a roadblock, manned by the Nielsen rating mob, it was thought changes in scenery and cast might receive interest in the series.

In an episode where Ben Pride (Barry Sullivan) bundled up his brood to head further west, he also picked up an additional passenger, an attractive widow named Ellen Brewster.

Jan Shepard was picked to play Mrs. Brewster, and had the series won renewal, she would have continued in the role.

In the trade Jan is known as a "crier," perhaps the result of being labeled the "actress with the saddest eyes" by writer Paddy Cheyevsky. She's always cast in emotional roles with high-tear content. But she's shed no tears over losing out on a continuing series role.

"I'm just as glad The Road West wasn't renewed," declared Jan, with no sign of regret. "It wouldn't have been good for me professionally. I want to be available for movies."

Jan is not turning her back on TV, not after a succession of good roles dating back to Fireside Theater, and series parts in daytime soaps, Day in Court and Clear Horizon.

"Oh no!" she quickly responds. "I'll always be grateful to TV for what it's done for me. All I have to do is look about the house. When I see the new patio, I say there's Bonanza; new refrigerator, there's Rawhide; new furniture, there's The Virginian. It's all spelled out for me right there."

The blond Sicilian beauty has great faith in her extrasensory perception. "I sense I'm at the height of my career now," said Jan, pensively.

Jan Shepard

"And I feel it's a good time for strong roles for women. My emotions have been at a higher level these three past years. Maybe my becoming a mother to a son had something to do with it. I'm not quite sure."

"When I finished a dramatic scene with Robert Lansing in The Virginian, he told me, 'That was sure your scene.' And Keenan Wynn, in that Road West scene where I lose my son in a fire and become hysterical, said I was the only other actress since Katherine Hepburn who made him cry."

Miss Shepard has also been informed she has "projection room quality," which unfortunately gets lost on the small TV screen.

"Julie Andrews does little things with her eyes that only the movie screen can show," she says. "There are big screen people and little screen people. I'm big screen."

There wasn't a trace of sadness in her eyes when she proclaimed: A good old-fashioned love story will beat James Bond any day."
